ARAX AROOSIAN, BUSINESS MANAGER

A decorative laurel wreath in orange ink, starting from the left edge and curving upwards and to the right, framing the title.

Honoring

RUSH H. KRESS, outstanding Bucknellian and self-made man, whose success in the business world and whose life of philanthropic service may be attributed to his hard work and deep religious convictions.

Mr. Kress was graduated magna cum laude from Bucknell in 1900. He has held many important positions in the leadership of alumni activities, and is now an honorary member of the Board of Trustees, having been elected to that position in 1946.

As a crusader for scholarship, as a patron of the arts, and as a benefactor of Bucknell, Mr. Kress has advanced in the educational world his firm beliefs in character, religion, and responsibility.

Through his wise counsel and deep interest in the Bucknell student, and through his faithful and generous support of his Alma Mater, Mr. Kress has helped to promote In Our Time the growth of Bucknell and its development as a leader among the small colleges of America.

*Bucknell changed
... In Our Time*

HISTORY OF BUCKNELL

IN OUR TIME . . . for every Bucknellian through the century, this phrase brings a memory of a different Bucknell . . . in his time.

In Their Time . . . it was 1846 . . . the beginning . . . a newly granted charter . . . Dr. Howard Malcolm, the first official president. Four years of mathematics. Latin and Greek were taught. There was a war and Bucknell men fought with the Union Army in a six-weeks campaign and returned in time for their Commencement.

In Their Time . . . the Bucknell Institute existed behind high board fences. It was another period of long skirts and puff sleeved blouses with pompadours and bustles. The University was named Bucknell. Came 1899, and Christy Mathewson played baseball for Bucknell.

In Their Time . . . 1900 . . . Fraternities and sororities organized. Classrooms and dormitories mushroomed to accommodate the growing number of students. Dr. John Howard Harris was president.

In Their Time . . . 1917 . . . War, and enrollment dropped to 117. With peace came the "Roaring Twenties" with bear skin coats, flapper girls, and "O! you kid!"

In Their Time . . . Bucknell continued to expand with more buildings, with new scientific and mechanical courses. 1930 . . . and the Crash . . . with a slow revival. Homer P. Rainey was president . . . and on a bright summer night in 1934, Old Main burned.

In Our Time . . . 1940 . . . Bucknell was normal, growing. A Phi Beta Kappa chapter was installed. Another war . . . Bucknell men went away again . . . and the Navy and Marines came to Bucknell. With peace, our times had changed. Dr. Herbert L. Spencer became our ninth president. It was a new century, a new and greater era for Bucknell. Thus ends Our Time . . . 1943.

This is the story of your years at Bucknell. An old story of football and Chapel and Sweetheart Songs . . . a warm story of laughter and friends . . . a vital story of study and thought and growth . . . a dramatic story of a University and a World. It tells not of the usual four, undisturbed years, but of years that threw a world into war and brought peace, years that span from the old to the new Bucknell. This is the story of Our Time.

Remember back in '41 when some of us came . . . to a college of dinks and dances and story book traditions? We were 18, and we tilted our pipes and polished our saddles. We cheered and dated and pledged. Four years seemed too short a time for so much fun!

Then, one Sunday afternoon we crowded into Bucknell Hall, then the home of our radio station, to sing the "Messiah". Suddenly, the music stopped. A brief announcement was made. That Sunday we felt older than 18 . . . dreams of four years crashed. It was December 7.

Days that followed brought rapid changes, and days became years. The draft . . . college training programs . . .

the pre-war ratio of two men to every girl . . . only a memory. Men only a memory, we joked. With frightening quickness Bucknell women had become the heart of their University. They had never published a paper—but somehow it came out every Thursday. A yearbook—but how—and that June there was a L'AGENDA.

The Navy blue and Marine's green replaced sports jackets on the Quad . . . military dress instead of tuxes at dances . . . only the girls wore saddle shoes, and chintz was hung on fraternity house windows. News broadcasts . . . papers . . . letters . . . a victory ship carrying the name "S. S. Bucknell" . . . and awareness of our responsibility beyond our University, to our World.

Then August, 1945! Veterans began to return . . . more mature looking, more mature thinking men. We found two thousand students on a campus designed for 1200. President Spencer took over the office vacated by Arnaud C. Marts.

New buildings met the demand for more classroom space, the faculty was enlarged, and Bucknell Village became "home" to fifty-five veterans, their wives, and their children.

In the 1948 L'AGENDA we have tried to record the events and personalities distinctive to our time . . . to present our school, its history and tradition, its students and faculty and administration . . . We have tried to tell your story . . . the story of Our Time at Bucknell.

President Herbert L. Spencer and Dean William H. Coleman leave Roberts Hall on their way to Fall Convocation.

HERBERT L. SPENCER

IDENT

Mrs. Spencer and Patty saying goodbye to Dr. Spencer as he leaves the campus to work on the 2nd Century Drive.

Charles H. Spencer, President Emeritus of Tau Beta Pi, congratulates Herbert L. Spencer at the Bucknell installation of the national engineering honorary.

HERBERT LINCOLN SPENCER, leader of students as beloved President of our university; leader of men in numerous intellectual and educational circles. He begins Bucknell's Second Century in the tradition of a liberal and progressive president.

He is also the busy executive who tries to fit into his harried schedule of conferences and speaking engagements, some photography or some flying, solo, or in a two-seater with daughter Nancy.

Former president of Pennsylvania College for Women, Dr. Spencer brought with him a reputation for friendliness, sincerity, and administrative skill. We add to those qualities an inner dedication to further the welfare of Bucknell—a virtue which makes him the inspiration and soul of the university.

Seen at the Student-Faculty Christmas Banquet: Dotty Sakasegawa, Dr. Spencer, Dorothy Gotterer, Mrs. Spencer, and Dean Coleman.

Mrs. William N. Frederick, more familiarly known as Betty, pauses in her activities as President Spencer's secretary-receptionist-travelogue expert extraordinary. Seniors go to her also to arrange job interviews under the Placement Bureau.

Mrs. Edwin P. Kammer, quiet and efficient, is another important member of President Spencer's staff, helping to keep presidential and administrative matters under control.

WILLIAM HAROLD COLEMAN

DEAN OF THE COLLEGE

Miss Martha Henderson, affectionately called "Dean Martha" is the hard working administrative secretary to the Dean of College.

Three years ago when Dr. William H. Coleman gathered up the reins of the Dean of the College, students lost a popular and inspiring English professor, a Shakespearean scholar of rare and beautiful insight. However, they gained a Dean of the College who remained in close contact with the undergraduates and who exercised the same wisdom and understanding in his new post.

His primary interest as Dean has been the innovation of a curriculum designed to prepare the new students of the post-war era to lead a fuller, more significant life.

Known for his dry wit, his inclination to pun, Dean William H. Coleman proved to be a personable administrator linking students, parents, administrators, and faculty into a closer unity.

Dean Coleman's right hand is Miss Martha Henderson, authorizer of class changes, interpreter of the catalogue, general working adviser to students who constantly wait in line to consult her.

REGISTRAR

A prospective Bucknellian's first official contact with Bucknell is George R. Faint, Acting Registrar and Director of Admissions, whose primary concerns are applications, admissions and registrations.

After many years of service at Bucknell Junior College in Wilkes-Barre, the dignified and friendly alumnus came to Bucknell and became the Veteran Liaison Officer. Later he was appointed Housing Director in charge of Bucknell Village.

His present position as Acting Registrar includes the certifying of veterans for the VA, and the billing of accounts. As the core of student and class information, his office compiles the student directory and catalogue. Not the least of the functions of the Registrar's office is the preparation of the mass exams held twice yearly.

GEORGE R. FAINT

DAYTON L. RANCK

TREASURER AND COMPTROLLER

In charge of Bucknell's million and three-quarters dollars budget is shrewd, efficient alumnus, Dayton L. Ranck. Responsible for incoming cash and expenditures, his office deals with students in all financial matters. For over two decades, Mr. Ranck has exhibited his business acumen with his accurate and prompt disbursing, by the timely purchasing of supplies and equipment, and by the wise handling of properties.

Although the official title of his office is that of Treasurer and Comptroller, Mr. Ranck sits with the Student Aid Committee, serves on the Administrative Council of the University of which he is secretary, and also serves as a part time lecturer in Administrative and Purchasing Economics.

DEAN OF MEN

Dean Musser discusses student problems with his assistant Mr. Ward Gage, head of men's counseling.

Unimpeachable character, a healthy body, a disciplined mind. These are the goals for students set by Malcolm Musser, Dean of Men.

Brisk and hearty, "Mal" Musser was former Assistant Professor of Physical Education and varsity basketball coach. On leave of absence during the war, he shared in the physical training of Navy men. Shortly after his return to Bucknell he became Dean of Men.

Dean Musser brings to his post the vigor and enthusiasm of the athletic field, an understanding of problems confronting students, a sense of fair discipline, a respect for Christian ideals.

"Mal" Musser is a shaper of citizens through the influence of warm friendship, wise counsel, and personal example.

Assistant to the Dean of Men, Ward Gage is also head counselor. A former Army Chaplain, he maintains a close personal contact with men students.

DEAN OF WOMEN

Dean Stevenson and her assistant, Miss Betty Funkhouser, discuss the merits of the newly established Honor System.

Mary Jane Stevenson, Bucknell's new Dean of Women, arrived in September to immediately captivate the women students with her charm and loveliness: soon gained their respect with her careful and impartial administration.

She brought to our campus a familiarity and human insight into coeducational problems gained through past experience. She is using this knowledge to further benefit the women students.

Firm in recognizing the importance of WSGA's Honor System, she was faithful in her trust in the students, helping each to grow, and the system to succeed.

Working with Miss Stevenson was Miss Elizabeth Funkhouser, especially concerned with the painless assimilation of freshmen women into college life. Miss Funkhouser, because she too was recently graduated from school, exercised her duties with a young outlook, a calm wisdom, and a quiet efficiency.

MISS MARY HUNT

PUBLIC RELATIONS

Bucknell Begins Its Second Century Drive for Endowments . . . Record Enrollment of 2300 Marks Fall Term at Bucknell . . . Thundering Herd Begins New Season . . . Susie Sem of Orange, N. J., is named on Dean's List . . . Bold headlines . . . small items in newspapers . . . all originating in the Office of Public Relations, and released through its News Service.

A never ending chatter of typewriters . . . a telephone that forever jangles . . . newspapers . . . clippings . . . releases . . . the Office of Public Relations is a beehive of journalistic activity, clearing-house of general information about the college and its activities, interpreter of university policies and accomplishments.

Under the capable direction of Miss Trennie E. Easley, assisted by Nancy Patterson, and Al Foster, the Public Relations Office is the outlet for all news reaching Bucknell's public. It is our contact with the outside world.

RECORDER

"A never ending job" is the way Miss Mary Hunt describes her work as Recorder of Bucknell University. As the official keeper of academic records for every student, it is her office that releases the crucial data, whether a Greek pledge has made his marks. A senior, doubtful of his status as graduation time nears, consults her for assurance. Miss Hunt and her two secretaries, Miss Mary L. Dannker and Mrs. Robert Taylor, are not only responsible for the certification of degree requirements, but also for the preparation of transcripts and records.

A familiar figure often seen walking up the hill to her office, Miss Hunt, Phi Beta Kappa from Denison University, exemplifies the nth degree of efficiency and competence in the management of one of the most necessary of administrative departments.

MISS TRENNIE E. EISLEY

DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS

Amiable Albert (Al) E. Humphreys, as Director of Athletics, has a finger in every sport pie at Bucknell.

As Business Manager of the Athletic Council, he settles the schedules for our teams, arranges for their safe transportation, and their adequate accommodations at away performances. Keeping tabs on the condition of the sports equipment, he orders replacements and supplies.

As Director also of Physical Education, Mr. Humphreys supervises the men's physical education program, and establishes requirements and courses. He also directs the well-rounded intramural sports project.

With his other duties, he also takes time out to teach a special exercise group. His understanding, friendship, and good humor make his office a place where athletes and non-athletes constantly drop in and know they are welcome.

ALBERT E. HUMPHREYS

FRANK G. DAVIS

THE ALUMNI OFFICE

The Alumni Office . . . center of alumni information, news, and activity.

As one of its main activities, the "Bucknell Alumnus", a newsy magazine of alumni doings, is edited and mailed four times yearly to former students all over the world, 10,000 in number. Alumni affairs at Commencements and Homecomings, are handled by the Alumni Office staff. The secretary of the Alumni Association also furnishes the fifty-eight clubs, ranging from New England to the newest chapter in the Pacific Northwest, with information, service, and speakers from the campus.

Permanent holder of this far reaching and vital office is white-haired Dr. Frank G. Davis, educator. During his leave of absence in the first semester, his post was temporarily held by Dr. Carl L. Millward, Lecturer in Education.

INFIRMARY STAFF

Wherever veterans congregate, there is a Veterans Administration serving as a center of information and aid. The Bucknell VA, set up to cope with the problems and welfare of the 1300 men on campus, for greater efficiency is divided into three separate departments.

Important vocational guidance in the form of personal psychological counseling is given by Dr. Loren S. Hadley, faculty member, assisted by Miss Evelyn Deen, psychologist and vocational appraiser. Aptitude tests are administered by two psychometricians, Mrs. Charles H. Gatchell, Jr., and Mrs. F. Burket Anderson.

The results of the tests are forwarded to VA officer William J. Lahodney who works in conjunction with the university administration to see that the individual takes the proper courses.

With his enrollment in classes, a veteran's monthly subsistence and benefits are then channelled through Philip Bouton, VA officer.

The trio work closely together to make the Bucknell VA a well-oiled machine which can boast of only 19 cases of late benefits out of the hundreds of applications last fall.

VETERANS' GUIDANCE CENTER

Dr. Loren S. Hadley, Director of the College Testing Service.

SUPERINTENDENT OF BUILDINGS AND GROUNDS

Although the title of Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds is an imposing one, the tasks connected with it are even more imposing.

On the shoulders of Walter C. Geiger, '34, rests the supervision of the cleaning and upkeep of all dormitories and classrooms. He is also responsible for keeping the campus in condition . . . the raking of leaves in the fall, paths cleared of snow and ice in mid-winter, seeds planted in spring, the grass cut in summer . . . a never-ending job.

Under his jurisdiction also falls the face-lifting and improvement program which has been carried out extensively in Our Time.

Mr. Geiger's office is also an active technical participant in Bucknell's Second Century drive for new buildings and further improvements.

OFFICE OF VISUAL AID

Hilltop Theatre . . . "Stage Coach," "One Million B. C.," "La Maternelle" on the screen . . . popular Friday night entertainment for only a budget card and a contribution, was one of the most entertaining features of the new Office of Visual Aid.

Hidden for a decade under the Registrar's office, the Visual Aid Office flashed into its useful and welcome place in Bucknell classrooms and activities in our time under the guidance of soft-spoken H. Walter Holter.

In addition to providing Hilltop movies, the office supplies the classroom with any and all sorts of visual aids, complete with skilled and experienced student operators. The new service relieves a professor of an unfamiliar and trying visual lecture while benefits are gained by students.

The Office of Visual Aid goes beyond the local campus, as its circulating film library of 350 reels supplies surrounding schools, churches, and organizations with all types of educational and entertainment films.

With the new Social Honor System, the role of the dormitory hostess was less the doorkeeper and the time-watcher and more the gracious hostess, interested in the happiness and the welfare of her girls.

Guiding crowded and busy Hunt Hall was Mrs. Sydney Bateman, ever firm believer in the Honor System. Freshmen were under the wings of Mrs. Mary E. Cockill and Mrs. Edith Corrin. Mrs. Robert Beattie was helpful to freshmen and sophomores in Harris Hall. Doing their share of hostessing were those of the smaller houses. Honor House girls found a young, career girl "mom" in Nancy Patterson. Mrs. Sarah L. Chubb spent her third year in Walker House. Mrs. Elizabeth Hill was in Ward House; Mrs. Thomas Richards in Hulley House; Mrs. Winifred Blair in Steven's House; and Miss Lorene Jewell in Sixth Street House.

Making the housemothers a cosmopolitan group were Claire Freund of German House, Mme. Simone DeBauw of La Maison Francaise, and Senorita Beatrice Gonzalez of La Casa Espanola.

MRS. MARTHA L. CHANCE
The secretary of our increasingly potent Social Committee is a Bucknell alumna who realizes the intricacies of B. U.'s lighter moods.

Meetings and meeting and more meeting during the week . . . Games, open houses, conferences at Cowan, dances crowding every weekend. It was a busy social year at Bucknell.

Making sure that there were no conflicts as to time and place was the function of the newly organized Social Committee, a central coordinating body whose most important equipment was a huge calendar of each month.

All organizations planning any sort of function were required to consult Mrs. Nelson Chance, Social Secretary, as to time and place. As coordinator of the crowded social calendar and as juggler extraordinary, Mrs. Chance switched and notated, phoned and hunted up meeting places. She was in the end, responsible for the smooth culmination of each week's activities.

BUCKNELL VILLAGE ASSOCIATION

Bucknell Village . . . a little community of neat, white houses, row upon row . . . where children of all sizes soaked in the sun and played . . . a young community of young inhabitants, where for some everyday was wash day.

An independent unit as Bucknell Village Association, the 50 families were under the leadership of George Rifensifer, president: with football player Bill McKay as vice-president: Polly Galbreath, secretary-treasurer.

The ordinary problems confronting any young couple in a community were not the only ones faced by the Villageites. There were the special difficulties confronting a veteran and his wife keeping house in a veteran's housing unit. Safe and sufficient recreation for the children was one of the main problems of the year.

However, school life and home life were combined successfully. "The Diaper Set" became a regular column in the Bucknellian and with thirty-eight small-fry in the Village, baby-sitting was reduced to a fine art.

WOMEN'S STUDENT

In September 1947 the Social Honor System, formulated by the Women's Student Government, went on trial. It was a new way of living with no sign-outs; overnight permission; 12 o'clocks galore and 12:30's on Friday. There was a new freedom of movement and with it a greater sense of responsibility; cooperation and respect for the girl next door, the girls in the hall.

WSGA did other things too. The costumed Hallowe'en dinner in the Sem was taken out of wartime moth balls with much fun and excitement. The gala, traditional Student-Faculty dinner was held in the Christmas season. This year, too, a new form of vocational guidance, practical and helpful, was established.

Earnest and idealistic Dorothy Gotterer, president of WSGA, guided the members of Senate through the period of readjustment with tolerance and inspiration. Dorothy Sakasegawa, vivacious vice-president and chairman of the House of Representatives, observed students' needs, acted upon them. Students, confused with regulations and demerits found a sympathetic but impartial adviser in Dorothy Harrison, straight-forward Chairman of the Judicial Council.

1947-48, remained the year of trial, and the Social Honor System was a living symbol of progress at Bucknell In Our Time.

Democracy in action . . . Student Faculty Congress. With a student and a faculty representative from each designated campus interest group meeting with representatives from the administration, Student Faculty Congress was a clearing house of campus opinion and problems, an action group for campus policies and activities.

Under the gavel of Georgia Hutchinson, SFC as a body and in special committees, undertook to further the benefits of students and student groups.

Its Budget Committee allocated $29,990 to campus organizations; it sanctioned and backed the WSSF Drive; it appointed Dick Ash as the student representative to the Athletic Council, the first student to serve in such a capacity since Dean Musser served on the Council as a student. SFC also fostered the National Students Association on campus. In the spring, SFC organized classes for the annual election of officers.

As new problems arose, Student Faculty Congress was a vital part in its thorough investigation and its solution. As a representative body of the student body, SFC was the organization which procured action where it was needed.

in OUR time
Classes

Ray Tyler, popular president of the Senior Class, chosen by the students as Mr. Bucknell. Once a Navy officer, now a married veteran, Ray could well typify the senior In Our Time.

HISTORY OF THE CLASS OF 1948

IN OUR TIME . . . For most of the men it began in 1942, or maybe it was in '40 or '41. We arrived apprehensive, though holding our heads high, anticipating football games, dances with smooth girls, fraternity smokers. For some of us, our dreams came true; for others, our dreams had just begun . . . when it all exploded abruptly on a cold December day. For others, it was the end: for us, it was only an interruption.

We went away to join the ranks of other men in khaki, olive drab, and navy blue. We went to Texas to become flyers, to Quantico to become marines, to Great Lakes to become sailors. We saw Frisco and the Golden Gate . . . felt the hot sun of a Georgia training camp. We saw the country as we were shuttled to and fro becoming machines of war. We crossed the waters and quickly learned of foreign lands and people, of a new and strange way of life.

We visioned campus, classes, and coeds through the pages of "Bucknellians" winged over the seas, folded, addressed, by girls left behind, memories away.

In Our Time . . . The tree clad campus with the red brick buildings rising on the hill was invaded by the Marines and the Navy V-12. We all became a part of the strict discipline and the regimentation that replaced dates, carefree days, and the old traditions that were synonymous with Bucknell.

An accelerated program with three crowded semesters tripping over each other's heels replaced a vacation-packed two semesters. We pledged to eat Thanksgiving turkey at school. We had a three day Christmas holiday and a one day breather between terms. Middies, gob hats, kerchiefs . . . study, slide rules, lectures . . . marching, watch, and mess.

In Our Time . . . For others of us it began in 1944, arriving late in October with the first view of the hill clothed in the warm reds and yellows of autumn. There was the confusion of arriving and meeting counselors. We met Mother Garrison and she was all that we had expected of a housemother. There was the first dinner in the Sem with the hustle and the clatter of many dishes.

Dorothy Gotterer, Treasurer; Raymond Tyler, President.

Later, there was the confusion of trying to unpack and to put things away neatly. Some of us, like Kay Musson, lived out of overnight bags until Railway Express found our lost trunks.

We were a large class, almost entirely girls, and in that first year, we spread to all the corners of the campus. Over in Kappa Sig, the "Attic Rats" dominated the third floor, and the balcony gave a strategic view of the goings-on in the living room. We slept in the sleeping porch in double deckers, and in the winter froze when Buggy insisted on opening the windows. Living like sardines in the Phi Gam house, we jammed our clothes into closets never meant for fur coats and racks of skirts. Claustrophobia was compensated by living next to the Navy Dining Hall. There were a few of us over in remote Brownell House with Mother and Father Brownell who gathered us into one big family.

In many ways, we were just another class . . . rushing to History 99 lectures, being scared of World Lit oral quizzes, sleeping through Art 100 slides, getting used to climbing the Hill, learning what to study, learning about the Bucknell Way of Life, learning to live it. As freshmen, we suffered the indignities of Hell Week and were targets of salty Navy jibes as we obeyed the whims of the sophomores. In Our Time, the Honor House seniors made a surprise attack on sophomore dignity and equilibrium by masquerading as freshmen, establishing a new sem tradition. Since we were in college, we developed an acute sense of politics that would shame our fathers and went all out for the 1944 Presidential elections. Deep were the depths of the sorrow of the Deweyites, and great was the jubilation of the followers of Roosevelt on that cold November morning when the final returns were announced.

But we were a different class too. Over feasts of crackers with peanut butter and jelly and sometimes precious rationed cheese, our counselors . . . Stolzle, Scotty, Whitey . . . told us of how it used to be. "Some day I hope it'll be the same for you." We volunteered to send "Bucknellians". We wrote V-Mails and received V-Mails in return. We sang of bell bottomed trousers and to be impartial, kept the planes flying and were proud to bear the title of the United States Marines. Janet, Mim, and Kandy found the Navy blue thoroughly acceptable.

The girls invaded the fraternity houses, but our time saw the men return to take things back in hand.

Walt Bower, Dick English, and Bill Daly enjoyed themselves at a freshman C. A. Camp in 1912.

Winter, 1945, came with fourteen inches of snow and a treacherous Hill. And then Spring burst forth overnight . . . and again the robins made friends with the busy-tailed squirrels. There were warm rains and more rains. The campus was bombarded with its yearly visit of dogs and children of all shapes and sizes.

It was during those lovely and peaceful days that we numbly mourned the loss of a long familiar figure, our leader and Commander-in-Chief, President Roosevelt.

In the spring semester, we were rushed by the sororities. Classes . . . studies . . . and sleep were abandoned. Bull sessions . . . sleepless nights . . . tears . . . white bids in mailboxes . . . heartbreak . . . joy . . . and it was all over with a huge joint pledge dance by all six sororities.

Spring stayed awhile and then stretched into the balminess and the heat of the summer's first days. Soon it was July. We crowded to Davis Gym and chewed our pencil through our finals, ran back to grab suitcase, and waved goodbye to friends for the summer, contented that we would be back again next year.

Summer of '45 brought peace and the hope that Bucknell would return to normal in our time. The wish of our counselors would perhaps come true.

We returned again in October to greet old friends. Some of us invaded Fraternity Row and went to live in the Phi Psi and Demi Houses. Some of us were in the Sig House, which was converted into a girl's dorm with a fire escape that started to go up during February exams and was never finished. We attended the meetings of the "Kamerades" held in Sally's room. The SAE House had a cold sleeping porch so we moved our beds to the dining room. Winter, 1946, was the year that the gripe epidemic shut down Bucknell classes early for Christmas vacation.

The V-5 replaced the V-12 but they wore the same Navy blues. By this time we were hardened to being awakened in the pitch dark of morning by the call and cadence of marching feet. We still came to attention in our flight up to an eight o'clock to watch the colors unfurl and whip in the morning air. We were sophomores and we laid down the law for the freshmen that year.

At mid-term, the Navy weighed anchor and the first of the veterans returned. We stood aside, feeling slightly forgotten as we watched old friends meet, as couples, long separated, took walks. Classes increased day by day.

In Our Time . . . It was a period of transition, slow, painful, often mildly chaotic. It was the time when Bucknell shook itself from its wartime bonds and took on a new life. It began in our sophomore year . . . There was the return of big dances. With the Sophomore Cotillion, Smiley was crowned queen. That was the year of the flash flood and classes were excused for the first time since the Civil War. We were rowed over to the Evangelical Hospital to serve as Nurse's aides. The girls in Kappa Sig and Phi Gam and SAE had to move. The campus was strange under water, and we didn't like the smell of mud that came later.

Our sophomore year was the year of Bucknell's one hundredth birthday, with all the pomp and pageantry out of the past of the Seminary, demure hoop skirts and frock coated gallants. The campus and the town overflowed with alumni from away back, all home from the wars, all happy to be together again. With new President Herbert Spencer, the president's house, gaily alive with fresh yellow paint, became a home again. Dr. Coleman instead of teaching "Lit" and Shakespeare became Dean of College. Faculty members left and familiar faces became part of a memory. New faces came to take their place.

Making news that year was the drive spark-plugged by Clint Marantz and Dick Watson to contribute to the Cancer Drive instead of buying corsages for the Senior Ball.

In Our Time . . . Fall, 1946. The enrollment hit a new high of 2100 students. Paths were crowded, classes filled, and registration became a major chore in Davis Gym and "Lit" sections stretched from a meager section "J" to "O". A fifth floor was discovered in four-floored East College.

Those of us who had come during the man shortage crowded around darkened windows to listen to our first fraternity serenade. Twin pins blossomed on sweaters. The men hurriedly reinstated themselves in their house. Cars . . . sleek Buicks, a few radical Studebakers with or without venetian blinds, the tired family car parked side by side on the widened driveways.

As juniors, some of us were counselors. Audrey, Judy, Dot down the Hill . . . up the Hill, Lou, Bill, Jack, Jonesy . . . showing others what they had learned themselves a short time before.

We were a part of the first big Homecoming Weekend to celebrate the Centennial with a parade, floats, and Bucky . . . charging, belligerent Buck, symbol of the Thundering Herd.

We were an old familiar part of Bucknell. We saw others come and take our places as freshmen and sophomores. We felt older and more responsible. That was the year that as members of WSGA, we worked for the

The Old—The New—and The Temporary.

Social Honor System with endless meetings, discussions, until the final acceptance was accomplished in the spring.

Across the highway, past the Stadium rose a miniature town of white orderly homes. Bucknell Village with its neat apartments became home for some of us.

Class members shifted and changed. Some who were '43 became '47, others who were '49 came to summer sessions and took extra hours and became members of the class of '48. Many an ex-'46 finally made it in '48.

There were some of us who returned and shrugged back easily into our comfortable tweed jackets, got into the swing of things. We told ourselves that Bucknell had not changed and we had not either . . . and we tried to recapture the past. Some of us found the old way wasn't the only way and tried to find something better in a world which was older, graver, more complex. Some of us only found that time had passed and wouldn't wait. We found that college was serious business, so we denied ourselves what we had lost forever in the shuffle of marching feet. We struggled our way through classes, picking up old relationships, reactions, relearning to learn, changing courses, switching majors.

For most of us, the realization came that there was no longer a three hundred acres set apart from the rest of the world.

Fall, 1947 . . . we were seniors.

Beatrice Smith, and Jean Rolka discuss the clock and card aspect of our newly installed social honor system.

We went to classes in the temporary classrooms which mushroomed beside the aged bricks and century old oaks.

There was talk of a "cold war" with Russia, of the Marshall Plan, and we realized that in a few short months we would be full fledged citizens, money-earners, voters, tax payers, members of communities. Were we prepared?

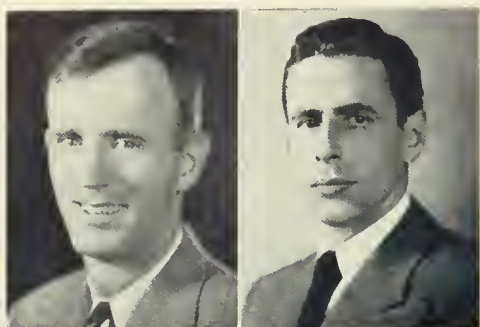

It was the time of the New Look with longer skirts for day, shorter skirts for evening, even though the men objected.

Some of us were in Honor House . . . and others were named on Who's Who in American Colleges . . . but all of us worried some time or other about hours and credits and requirements and haunted Miss Henderson's office.

Twenty-five of us became a part of an experiment and were members of a new interdepartmental course for seniors . . . Philosophy 350 . . . There were lectures by distinguished leaders of different fields . . . Toynbee . . . stimulating discussion . . . a guiding light for our personal future, an experiment in the future of Bucknell curriculum.

In Our Time . . . It was the Time of an Atomic Bomb, a United Nations, a world of new powers, of new standards, and yes, even of the New Look. It all became a part of our time, as Bucknell reorganized its curriculum, shuffled its rules and regulations, began its gigantic Second Century Drive. With blue-prints of a more liberal college, a closer community of faculty and students, a greater Bucknell with its long dreamed of library and chapel . . . our time has come to a close.

In Our Time . . . It becomes a memory now, a kaleidoscopic memory that for some began long ago, for others a short four years ago. It ends now with the bright June sun warming our caps and the lazy June breeze stirring our gowns as the procession winds down the hill.

Second Row—Judy Agnew, Ruth Naul, Arax Aroosian, Bob Taylor, Jean Lenox, Jean Perkins.

Third Row—Teddy Monaco, Fran Kennedy, Frank Hamlin, John Clark, Florence Kreidler, Rae Schultz.

The editor-in-chief in an unusually benevolent mood—Bob Taylor ready to grin.

Arax Aroosian, our efficient business manager, resorts to the files.

L'AGENDA . . . a memory book of In Our Time . . . to make you remember and to live our time again in years to come. But because we were so close to it, because we molded it and saw it grow day by day, we will turn over the pages of L'AGENDA 1948 and remember "In Our Time" coming to life in words and pictures.

We started with the beautiful dummy planned by Bob (Deadline is the 19th) Taylor, gangly editor, usually found propped against the wall behind his desk, talking persuasively into the phone, simultaneously answering the clamoring circle of section editors asking for pictures, information.

Assisting him was Jean Lenox, one of the associate editors, bringing humor and intensity to her work, posing pictures to tell a story. Ruth Naul, the other assistant editor, proven under previous fire, calm and cool under deadline orders. Arax Aroosian, a business manager with budget worries, relieved slightly with an extra $2,000 grant from the Budget Committee. Mike Nightingale and his camera toting, flash-bulbing corps of photographers, seen everywhere at everything. Section editors scheduling pictures . . . Wednesday night staff meetings . . . at the beginning of the semester to let the editor know that we were living . . . later on, busy planning sessions before the deadline.

But out of chaos comes order and out of chaos came L'AGENDA 1948, a book of memories of Our Time in pictures and in words.

THE BUCKNELLIAN

Although displaying its familiar old English banner, the "Bucknellian" also acquired the "new look" this year with the addition of more pictures throughout its regular weekly eight pages.

With the appointment of John Wilbur as editor, in the fall, the first edition rolled off the presses to start the year with news of a record enrollment, and continued through a hectic, record circulation, anything-can-happen year of news. There were indignant Letters to the Editor, with fighting words . . . skirmishes . . . a thought provoking, satiric Thanksgiving editorial that brought a wave of protest from spoon fed readers.

Raising the "Bucknellian" from the position of a bulletin board were features . . . Omar Seals' "World Wide" column of news outside the 300 acres . . . Pictures of the Week submitted by camera fans . . . "Diaper Set" from out Bucknell Village way . . . the humor of conscientious, letter writing Freddy Frosh, bewildered scholar of the Bucknell Way of Life.

The Sunday night deadline for all news to News Editor Ruth Creola began another weekly session of proof-reading galleys . . . searching for "the" word for a headline . . . harried hours of

THE SQUIRL

Taking its place beside the Bucknellian and L'AGENDA as the "Big Three" of campus publications, the Squirrel has brought something new to the Bucknell way of life—a variety magazine on a par with those of other colleges.

Organized last spring by a small group of progressives, the Squirrel staff, after being approved by the Board of Publications, buckled down to the task of making the first year of the magazine's existence a memorable one. Six times during the year editions of the Squirrel rolled off the presses, and each time purchases had to be limited to advance subscriptions.

Under the leadership of Ralph Speck, editor; Les Brown, co-ordinating editor, and Maurice Golub, business manager, the first issue of the Squirrel, after its introductory copy last May Day, appeared at Homecoming in October. The title, brain child of one of the members of the original board, who took his cue from the squirrels on the campus, led to the idea of featuring a man-like squirrel on the cover of the magazine. And who can forget the cheerful-looking squirrel, drawn by John Clark, with the large "B" on his sweater, slowly floating to the ground in his parachute?

WVBU

From the Radio Workshop on Seventh Street comes the "Voice of Bucknell University"—WVBU—the four call letters which spell "entertainment" with a capital "E" for Bucknell students.

The major nation-wide networks had nothing on WVBU this year, for Bucknell's own station served on the air a varied program—campus and national news flashes, dramatic presentations, student-faculty quiz programs and the old standby, "Music to Study By." The newly-installed telephone in the workshop was kept busy ringing during the special request program, when the engineer took over the role of a disc jockey. Guiding the WVBU's rides on the air waves was Gladys Kurtz, director of the Radio Workshop.

THE UNIVERSITY GLEE CLUB

Under the able direction of its popular conductor, Dr. Harold E. Cook, the University men's glee club again won the praise of its campus and ever-growing public.

Highlight of the club's activities for the year was the annual concert tour. This year's tour lasted five days and covered over 700 miles in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York. Approximately 10,000 persons heard the club throughout its 14-concert schedule.

Club members will remember well the long hours spent in the last days of practice, the longer bus rides, and most of all the good time had by all.

Leaving Bucknell's campus early one cold Sunday morning, the two buses carried the club's 75 members to their first concert in the Phoenixville Baptist Church, followed by an evening concert at the Bala Cynwyd Methodist Church. Then the pace was accelerated to three concerts a day: a morning concert, in which the members tried to find the voices which they had lost the night before; an afternoon concert, which included a brief pause for lunch and a chance to look over the local talent; and an evening concert followed by a dance or, for a change, a few songs without the footlights.

So well remembered were the wonderful turkey dinner and hearty welcome of Mr. Connelly in Woodbury, the quiet little town of Lambertville, and the snow of Nyack and its blizzard-clogged highways.

Remembered also will be Ray "Flotow" Tyler, as he sang "M'appari tutt' amor" from "Martha", while the club watched the high school girls swoon. Then, there was Ray "Mortimer" Livingston who, with his false face, managed to relieve the tension of the morning's mistakes. Speaking of mistakes makes the writer blush a bit as he remembers his famous solo in "Hospodi Pomiloi."

To these may be added Dave Grimm and his broadcasting, Paul Watkins and his daily weather report. "a Piano accompanists Stan Purdy, Al Borelli, Harry Drew and Bob Lowry. Part of the Concert program included piano improvisations by Stan and Harry, or piano solos by Bob Lowry.

Quartet of the club was organized by the Phi Mu Alpha, sinfonia fraternity, formed this year on campus. Members of the quartet are: Joe Blackburn, Bill Connelly, Bob McKim, and Cliff Reims.

touch of cold," or "a touch of sun," and Jack McDonald hobbling off the stage trapped in a folding chair on which he had unhappily tried to stand. Topping all this was Dick Gessner and his endless repertoire of jokes.

Other personalities featured by the club were the fine quartet comprised of Joe Blackburn, Bill Connelly, Bob McKim, and Clifford Reims; baritone soloist, Bill Groover, who also furnished the "great Amen" for "Dry Bones." Perhaps the most noticed active person on the trip, aside from Dr. Cook and Manager Bill Petredis, was Joe Rubinstein, photographer extraordinaire, who put into pictures the memories of the concert tour of 1918.

The club left the campus early on a cold Sunday morning. The song trek took place during the mid-winter vacation in February.

BUCKNELL BAND

High-stepping majorette — Lee Luke.

Director Robert Beckman.

The Thundering Herd pawed the ground, ready to charge to victory on the football field . . . and to Bucknell's Memorial Stadium returned crowds, excitement and color, with a bright part of it supplied by the new orange and blue uniforms of the revitalized Bucknell band. Led by a color guard and two high-stepping majorettes, the band performed at half-time.

Accompanying the Bisons, the band made several trips including a hilarious and unsuccessful jaunt to New York when one of the two buses broke down and half of the band arrived in time for the closing whistle of a game that had been postponed.

Numbers like "Great Day," with plenty of pep and rhythm were added to the repertoire by Mr. Robert Beckman, Bucknell's band director for the second year.

In the spring formal concert, the feature was a special arrangement of Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" with a piano solo included in a program of popular numbers, overtures, and symphonies.

UNIVERSITY SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

This year brought a revitalized Bucknell Symphony Orchestra back on campus, with a new name . . . the University Symphony Orchestra. Thirty students forgot about their homework, ten townspeople laid aside their household chores, and several professors laid aside papers in order to practice.

The Orchestra, directed by Mr. Constantino Nagro, got off to a good start by rendering the music for the annual Convocation Exercises. They added their bit to the Christmas season by playing at the Christmas Community Program on December 7, and by accompanying the chorus in the "Messiah."

Religion in Life Week was another occasion for the Orchestra to perform. And the big event of the spring season was the annual Music Week Festival in May. An exchange concert was also held with another college.

Bill Connelly was concert master; and the officers were: Dorothy Whitley, president; Richard Coleman, student manager; and Laurel Kreitzburg, librarian.

Barbara Hillhouse, Dr. Cook, and Betty Holter arrange a new number.

The glorious and rousing Hallelujah Chorus, 200 voices strong, brought to a brilliant climax the traditional Christmas performance of Handel's "Messiah" by the Bucknell Mixed Chorus. With membership composed of interested persons, the Mixed Chorus, this year, one of the largest in Bucknell's history, performed after months of Sunday afternoon rehearsals under the direction of Dr. Harold E. Cook of the School of Music.

Their performance this year once again brought its warm Christmas message at the beginning of another Yuletide.

Highlighting the production were the soloists: Professor Roderick O. Williams, tenor, of the School of Music and the other soloists from the surrounding communities. Miss Darina Tuhy and Professor William McRae, both of the music faculty and the University Symphony Orchestra trained by Prof. Constantino Nagro accompanied the Chorus.

In the spring, Mixed Chorus presented another program of sacred music.

Mixed Chorus' presentation of Handel's "Messiah" once more thrills Bucknellians.

GIRLS' GLEE CLUB

Long hours of practice on Monday and Thursday evenings is what being members of the Women's Glee Club meant for its 95 coed members—for the student body, the group meant many delightful hours of musical entertainment.

Under the direction of Professor Roderick O. Williams, the Glee Club highlighted the Christmas season with its annual chapel program of familiar carols, and followed through by climaxing the year with an inspiring program of Easter ascension selections. Taking their wide variety of numbers—including ballads, folk tunes, and compositions of the polyphonic and romantic school—to the outside public, the singing coeds did justice to the Bucknell name on their annual tour of the Philadelphia area. Officers of the organization were Betty Diegel, manager; Alice Bogdanoff, assistant manager; Janice Fields, treasurer; Myra Hammond, secretary; Ellen Morrow, librarian, and Julie Wohl, accompanist.

ier's "Rebecca" on November 14 and 15, presented as part of the first post-war Dad's Day Program.

A larger, more extravagant set, designed by C. Willard Smith, achieved the illusion of a spacious English country house. Working with more male members after the lean "war years," but also working against increasing production costs, the committees of Cap and Dagger worked hard to make "Rebecca" a success. A new simplified system of patrons on a season's ticket basis was inaugurated.

Heading the cast were Jean Lennox, veteran C. & D. actress, as Mrs. DeWinters and Leon (the Late George Apley) Gonzalez, who played Maxim. Jane Kreider, new to C. & D. footlights, played Mrs. Danvers. Supported by a distinguished and talented cast, the production, was directed by Ted Titolo with assistance from Joan Schwartzberg.

The final touch to the play was given by the usual critic forum consisting of faculty members, and this year, a student, Ralph Speck.

CHRISTIAN

Religion in Life Week . . . Student Church Forum . . . 9:30 Class . . . weekend conferences at Cowan . . . fellowship programs with social life and spice.

Slanted toward the new post war era, the Christian Association, after seeing the veterans through the war years, turned again with full attention to the spiritual needs of all creeds through a program of worship, study, fellowship, and action.

At the helm of the CA this year were Jack Warden, president; Dorothy Sakasegawa and Clint Marantz, vice presidents; Robert H. Taylor, secretary; and Rae Schultz, treasurer. An advisory council of thirty students and faculty members, under the chairmanship of Harold Hayden, provided general direction to the organization with the aid of Forrest D. Brown, general secretary.

Climaxing the year of activities was the sixth annual Religion in Life Week in February, when thirty leaders were invited to the campus for a series of addresses, forums, group and personal conferences, and informal bull sessions.

Throughout the year, the CA carried on a well integrated program to share intimately with activities both on and off campus. Delegates were sent to take active part in national, regional, and sectional meetings of the World Student Christian Federation with which the CA is affiliated.

The Community Service, Christian Vocations, and Social Actions Committees gave students an opportunity to put their religion to work in practical projects in church-hour nurseries, youth clubs, and scout troops.

One of the student-led worship programs was the Forum on Sunday evenings when informal addresses by prominent men and women in many fields frequently led to informative give and take discussions with student participation.

Located seven miles from Lewisburg, Cowan, the recreation and conference center maintained by the CA, served as a week-end haven for study-weary students and was the site of many stimulating conferences.

Another popular feature of CA-sponsored activities was 9:30 Class, whose program was centered around the Sermon on the Mount and a consideration of the parables of Jesus.

There was no let-up in the activity of the CA during the year . . . not even during the summer months. Participating in summer service projects were thirty students, some of whom gained first hand experience on government projects in Washington and others on industrial assignments in Connecticut under the sponsorship of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A., with which the CA is associated. Still others worked in mental institutions as part of the Friends Service units.

Working closely with the CA were the Newman Club, Catholic fellowship founded two years ago, and Hillel, an organization to further the cultural, social, and religious interests of Jewish students at Bucknell.

DEBATING

"Resolved, that a federal world government should be established." With this as the central topic of the year, the Debating Club, organized last year, swung into another season of a debating convention with eastern colleges. As a member of the Pennsylvania Association of Debate Clubs, it was a year of wins and losses, of traveling to numerous schools.

The organization this year sponsored again a debating tournament among the Greeks in the spring semester. With the topic: "Resolved, that the United States should adopt a program of Universal Military Training," each group's debate team competed for oratorical honors.

The Debating Club was led by senior debate manager, Irvin Graybill; Robert Pratt, junior debate manager; Barbara Hall, recording secretary; and Ernest Steele, corresponding secretary.

SOCIOLOGY CLUB

Sociology . . . past and present . . . was the important concern of the Sociology Club, organized In Our Time for any student interested in the numerous phases of sociology.

Typical among the speakers brought to campus this year was Dr. Frank Simpson, executive secretary of the Connecticut Inter-racial Committee and director of the FEPC in his state. Working committees of the Sociology Club covered a wide field . . . Social Work undertook a baby-sitting program in cooperation with the Dean of Women's Office . . . the Minorities Committee worked with the NAACP in inter-racial work . . . the Anthropology Committee brought speakers and movies on the subject to campus.

Officers of the Club were Nick Sileo, president; Bette Hoile, vice president; Nancy Bishop, corresponding secretary; Myra Hammond, recording secretary; Patricia Owens, treasurer.

Sociologists in post-meeting forum Nick Sileo, Myra Hammond, Dr. Chapman, Bette Hoile, Nancy Bishop.

PHILOSOPHY CLUB

Philosophy, philosophers, and philosophic questions relating to other fields were what interested the members of the Philosophy Club, organized last year.

Bringing in outside philosophers, the Club also had as guests to their meetings, members of the faculty presenting the relation of philosophy with other arts and sciences. Henry Bergson's theory of laughter was discussed . . . the philosophy of Business was another discussion . . . a psychologist's viewpoint was also given.

Philosophy Club officers were Ralph PHELLEPS, president; George J. Miller, secretary-treasurer. Faculty adviser was Professor W. Preston Warren.

Deep philosophical thought—George Miller, Dr. Warren, Ralph PHELLEPS.

PSYCHOLOGY CLUB

Dramatic experiences . . . frustration . . . schiz . . . psychoes . . . were understandable terms to members of the Psychology Club, one of the new organizations on campus. With their purpose to further the interests of "Psych" majors, regular meetings became stimulating affairs with the discussion of current topics and guest speakers.

First hand observation of psychological problems were made during field trips to the State Hospital in Danville and to Laurelton State Village.

President of the organization was Grant Tompkins; with Carol McNerny, corresponding secretary; Martha Chance, recording secretary; Jeanne Grice, treasurer; and Gloria Anderson, program chairman.

Brotherhood . . . non-discrimination . . . tolerance. With this in mind, the Bucknell Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People attempted to enlarge the sphere of brotherhood between races on campus, in surrounding communities, in other schools. Through the efforts of the local chapter, other NAACP groups were founded in Williamsport and Wilkes-Barre.

Led by dynamic Jeanette Bowling, president; Charlotte Taylor, vice president; Lois Eberhardt, and Sachi Mizuki, secretaries; Dorothy Sakasegawa, treasurer; NAACP acquired the reputation as an organization of action under the inspired support of Dr. Cyrus Karraker and Dr. and Mrs. Manning Smith, advisors.

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB

In Our Time the IRC became a larger, more powerful organization, with membership increased by veterans and students who felt the need for a more united world, who believed in racial and religious brotherhood.

Furthering their purpose, IRC concentrated on the Student Federalists, whose aim was to help establish a world government.

IRC's outstanding imported speaker of the year was Dr. Frank Simpson of the Connecticut FEPC Committee who was brought to campus in co-operation with the Sociology Club.

IRC sent Bill Rubin, Mike Kronish, Norman Goodwin as delegates to the Herald Tribune Forum; and Carol Griffen and Audrey Krauss were sent as delegates to the IRC conference of the Middle Atlantic Region.

Officers this year were Joe Farrell, president; George Miller, vice president; Florence Kreitler and Carol Griffen, secretaries; and Dick Gerlach, treasurer.

STUDENT CAMPUS CLUB

In 1947 the Student Campus Club was once again able to carry out all the traditions and practices of its pre-war years.

Members sported new pins on sweaters . . . candle light initiation with its solemn rituals made its appearance on the calendar . . . the Harvest Dance was held in Larison Living Room . . . and intramural sports found SCC members competing for team success.

Under the leadership of Ray Clugh, president; Alden Dalzell, vice president; Frances Brown, secretary; Mark Iba, treasurer, the traditional Senior Banquet made its appearance after an absence of over four years. The banquet, held in the Orange and Blue Room of the "Burger," had as guest of honor, Professor Willard Smith, who held the entire organization spellbound with his rendition of "Patterns."

SCC . . . a working organization . . . wrote the finish of a successful year with a feeling of accomplishment and of well-earned pride.

CHI CHI

A once destitute family in Greece has found bountiful friends in the members of Chi Chi, a group of commuters organized primarily to give them a sense of belonging on campus. With the family as their major project for the second year, Chi Chi held a successful benefit bridge in the spring to raise money to buy clothes for their adopted charges. The annual tea held for members of Senate and the House of Representatives in the fall, dinner at the Inn, and movie parties rounded out the year.

Twice monthly meetings in the Commuter's Room with lunches, discussions, and announcements were presided over by Genevieve Fowle. Other officers were Mary Kathryn Clemens, vice president; Frances Asher, treasurer; Patricia Wagner, secretary.

Socializing at Chi Chi Tea are Doris Strasser, Vieve Fowle, and Kit Clemens.

FLYING CLUB

For those who had aspirations to be birds and for those who couldn't get flying out of their blood, the Flying Club, symbolical of the progress in our time, was organized in the fall of this year . . . with membership open to women. With special rates arranged with the Milton Airport, the more experienced members of the club took up the planes for pleasure, while fledglings were given lessons. Air meets were also sponsored.

Chief pilot for the club was Michael Mettler, with correspondence and income under the control of Wells Colby. Robert Rautenstranch was faculty adviser.

AMERICAN SOCIETY OF CIVIL ENGINEERS

A unifying element created for the advancement of the sciences of engineering and architecture . . . professional improvement of its members . . . these are the objects of the American Society of Civil Engineers, founded at Bucknell in 1921, a year after the first student group was authorized to be established.

Bi-monthly meetings of the group of all civil engineering students, at which papers were presented and discussed were the mainstay of activity. Socially, the Society holds a spring outing at Cowan, joint meetings with other nearby campus chapters, and a yearly banquet for all members.

Leading the group were Charles Hott, president; Claire Wynkoop, vice-president; Doris Raub, secretary-treasurer; Dr. Dalzell M. Griffiths, adviser.

Civil Engineers in determined study—Claire Wynkoop, Charles Hott, Doris Raub.

AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF MECHANICAL ENGINEERS

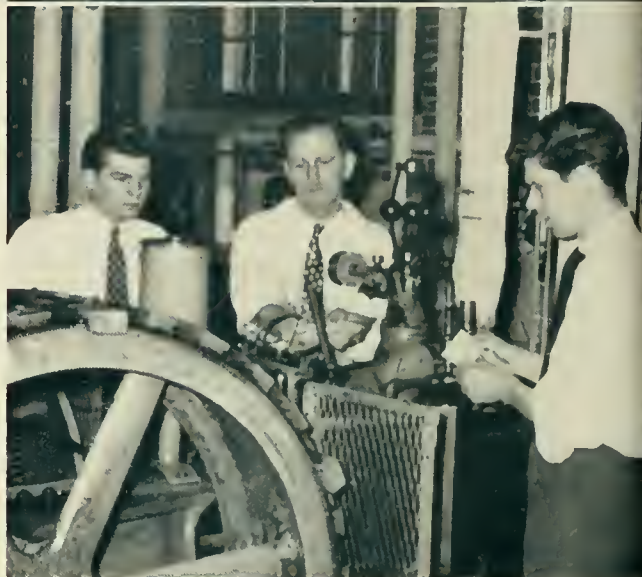

Fostered by the parent group, the Bucknell branch of the American Institute of Mechanical Engineers participated in most of the parent groups' activities.

At the regular meetings, papers by students were read and discussed. Speakers were imported, and an occasional field trip was made.

In November, senior members of the group extended their Thanksgiving vacation to attend a convention of the AIME in Atlantic City. Packed with technical sessions, papers covering the latest advancements in the field, movies, and inspection trips, the Bucknellians were among the 1,500 graduate and student delegates from the United States.

Officers of AIME this year were Arthur Rowe, President; George Root, vice-president; John B. Clark, treasurer. Professor John C. Reed was adviser.

AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF ELECTRICAL ENGINEERS

An inspection trip to Case Institute of Technology during a student branch conference in Cleveland highlighted the year for some of the members of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

Organized in order to advance the science and the profession, the student branch at Bucknell is a part of the professional society.

All electrical engineering students are eligible for membership. At its meetings, papers on subjects pertaining to their field are read, speakers from industry are guests, and discussions are held. Once a year, a joint meeting with the Lehigh Valley Section of the AIEE is also held.

Officers this year were David W. Leiby, president; George Kreisher, vice-president; and Paul Halecki, secretary-treasurer. Professor George Irland was faculty adviser.

AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF CHEMICAL ENGINEERS

Senior members of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers took a five day tour of industries after Thanksgiving vacation, starting at the Chemical Exposition in New York City, visiting plants from Schmidt's Brewery to the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company.

Mindful of the purposes of the Institute, which is the advancement of the science in theory and practice, and the maintenance of a high professional standard, AICE packed its year with stimulating meetings.

AICE Officers were: William Hayden, president; William Hinkle, vice-president; Ralph Derr, secretary-treasurer. Professor Albert H. Cooper was adviser.

KAPPA CHI LAMBDA

Believing in practicing what they preach, members of Kappa Chi Lambda, an organization of students interested in any phase of religious work, concentrated this year on their deputation teams. Teams composed of three members of KCL traveled to surrounding community churches and directed the services of a simple sermon and musical or vocal numbers.

Kappa Chi Lambda members who are potential ministers, missionaries, religious journalists, and religious educators or any other religious leader, met weekly in the home of Dr. Charles M. Bond to discuss and to hear speakers on vital subjects.

Led by George Sinclair, Kappa Chi Lambda, also one of the seven councils of the CAA, was the campus agent for summer work projects.

SOCIETY FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF MANAGEMENT

Future businessmen and executives made up the membership of the Society for the Advancement of Management, installed on campus by members of the Commerce and Finance faculty and students last year.

The group played host to speakers from various business fields and job interviewers from numerous concerns. SAM also co-operated with the placement bureau and made field trips to nearby companies. Several of the members also attended a meeting of the chapters of eastern United States in New York City.

Officers this year were Robert Kessler, president; Richard Wurfel, vice-president; Louise Crothers, secretary; Dale Hay, treasurer.

AMERICAN CHEMICAL SOCIETY

Organized for the chemistry "orphans" who spend most of their spare moments in the labs gazing into test tubes, the Bucknell affiliate group of the American Chemical Society was headed this year by Robert Sentz.

Promoting further interest in chemistry through scholarly discussions, special outside speakers, and student speakers on subjects such as "The Uses of Deuterium", ACS is open to any chem enthusiast.

BOOSTER CLUB

Behind the spirit of Bucknell . . . one of the most important assets of the University . . . lies the Booster Club, reorganized after the war, now the largest organization on the campus with 750 members.

Looking into the future, the orange and the blue club this year began negotiations to obtain by next fall, a mascot to replace Bucky the Bison, the college's first official mascot, who succumbed of homesickness for his native plains.

Guiding the activities of the Booster Club were President Paul Watkins, assisted by James Burt, vice-president; Bette McBride, secretary, and Ken Kessler, treasurer. Policies of the group were outlined by a board of directors consisting of representatives from sororities, fraternities, the Student Campus Club, the band and the cheerleaders.

LANGUAGE HOUSES AND

Bucknell turns international . . .

For the purpose of gathering together language students to give them an opportunity to speak French, Spanish, or German in every day conversation, three language houses were added to the Bucknell campus this year.

At French House, under the guidance of Mrs. Simonne De-Bauw, the girls held informal coffee hours after supper each night at which they chatted in the best French manner. Once a week, a French movie was shown and friends and interested persons were invited to attend.

Mademoiselles relax on their language house steps.

Brit Solberg finds she can decipher Chien Chai Loo's Chinese poetry, as Myra Hammond and Sachi Mizuki watch her progress.

German House, with Clare Freund, a student from Berlin, as the "conversation instructor," kept an active schedule with afternoon teas. They also held after supper talks in the living room, limited to the girls living in the house.

Senorita Beatrice Gonzalez led the Spanish House through its daily "Como esta usted?" way. As did the German students, Spanish House residents had its afternoons for more formal conversation, and its early evening coffee hours together. At this time, interested people were invited and Senor Sprague and Senorita Holm of the Spanish faculty were frequent guests.

The girls were not required to speak the language of their houses at all times, but realizing that by doing so they could become more fluent in the language, they used every day expressions . . . "Who's in the bathtub," . . . or . . . "Anybody got a match," . . . in Spanish, French, and German.

SUMMER INSTITUTE

German House frauleins admire their handiwork—a German Christmas tradition.

During the summer, the tables were turned and foreign students learned English.

The English Language Institute at Bucknell, established in 1944, held its regular 8-weeks session during the months of July, August, and September. Representing Belgium, England, Iraq, Italy, and the South American countries, the students gathered at the Institute to learn English as a preparation for professional and post-graduate work in North American schools.

In addition to regular classes where English fundamentals were learned, the students still had time to become Americanized and "Bucknellized." Informal conversations were inspiring to participating faculty members as well as to the foreign students.

The part the Language Institute plays in generating friendly international relations cannot be underestimated. The enthusiasm of the students for the American way of life and the American people is equaled by the Institute's interest in them as personalities and as representatives of their respective cultures.

TAU BETA PI

Formal installation of the local chapter was held in December with national officers of Tau Beta Pi presiding, and with representatives from Pennsylvania chapters as guests. Approximately thirty-five students, faculty, and alumni were initiated into the original group. Membership is limited by a high scholastic standard. Seniors must be of the upper fifth of their class; juniors must belong to the upper eighth.

Tau Beta Pi, national engineering honorary known in engineering circles as the "Phi Beta Kappa of engineering," installed its Eta chapter at Bucknell, December 11, 1947. Petitioned for national membership last spring by Beta Epsilon Sigma, local engineering fraternity, the first inkling of acceptance by the national group came when Dr. Warren D. Garman, a member of the engineering faculty, wired the news to Dean William H. Coleman from a convention of the honorary in New York.

Founded in 1885 at Lehigh University, Tau Beta Pi has expanded until today it boasts eighty-two chapters and 48,000 members throughout the nation.

The new chapter is under the direction of Dr. Garman of the mechanical engineering department and Dr. Dalzell M. Griffiths of the civil engineering department.

The officers were: William H. Douglas, president; A. G. Williams, vice president; Roy Jennings, secretary; David W. Leiby, treasurer.

With the impressive Tapping Ceremonies, Omicron Delta Kappa, National Men's Honorary fraternity notifies its newly elected members. Posting the names of those who have been chosen on the ODK board which is placed on the sundial in the Men's Quad, men from the upper 35 percent of the class, who have excelled in scholarship and the participation of university activities become members of the highest men's honorary. Members are chosen for leadership in the fields of scholarship and honoraries, in social and religious activities, in athletics, in publications, and in speech, music and the dramatic arts.

Founded nationally in 1914, ODK chapter at Bucknell was instituted in 1945 as successor to Torch and Scroll.

The largest task undertaken by the local chapter of ODK is the production of the Post Exam Jubilee. ODK this year was led by John Wilbur, president; Robert Camac, vice president; Dr. Walter H. Sauvain, secretary; Daniel Kramer, treasurer.

Seven girls, outstanding in leadership, scholarship, and service to the school, were selected from the junior class last spring to wear the pin of Mortar Board, national honorary society for senior women. Highlights in the activities of the Mortar Board girls this year were the "coke dates" with transfer students to help them become better acquainted with Bucknell, and the sale of the pictorial Bucknell calendars, the proceeds of which went to the Mortar Board fund for aid to needy women students. Serving as officers for Mortar Board this year were Audrey Johnson, president; Jane Farr, vice president; Dorothy Gotterer, secretary; and Jean Lenox, editor.

Honor House girls found that life at 6th and Walker was like living on a hot stove. Starting off the year was the "Bucknellian" story labelled the "Wheel House." It continued through all night bull sessions which ended with hot coffee in the kitchen . . . a riotous Hallowe'en party in the basement with all the spooks and spirits . . . dressing up in long skirts and stocking heads for Hell Week . . . the short visit of Phi Alpha (alias Oogie).

There was the annual Sunday afternoon tea where President Spencer and Dean Coleman made big hits . . . little parties for anyone on the slightest provocation.

They wondered when the house would utter its last weary sigh and completely collapse . . . and listened to Nancy Patterson's records, and enjoyed her humor and her common sense advise . . . and L'Agenda work wound up in all corners of the house. They studied, typed term papers, discussed seminars between meetings and "extracurrics."

Winter came, and Honor House lost Arax, Janie, and Chick. Then the sun came out and the sun porch was ready for use, if anyone had the time.

The year was over too quickly. It was June, and Lennie, who had been planning a wedding, found that the day had arrived. The others thought of how quickly the four years had flown. It was time for caps and gowns . . . and the end of a short, busy, too-wonderful year in Honor House.

PAN-HELLENIC

“Pan-Hell.” inter-sorority governing body, handled rushing in a new manner this year. Bids to parties, instead of being placed in mail-boxes, were slipped privately under the rushees’ doors at 6:00 a. m. Thus, Pan-Hell delegates found themselves with a new task, and a busy alarm clock. The Pan-Hellenic Reception, the first function in Rush Week, became an evening affair instead of a Sunday afternoon tea. Also new this year was the Pan-Hell sponsored counseling service for rushees. President Jane Gibson and Secretary Lee Riggs were on duty between 11-12 a. m. in Larison to discuss sorority matters with puzzled rushees.

A junior and senior representative from each national sorority and the two local Greek organizations compose the membership of Pan-Hellenic. Besides rushing problems, the inter-sorority group works on the Inter-Fraternity Ball and also administers a scholarship fund to which each member sorority contributes.

INTER-FRATERNITY COUNCIL

With the return to normal, after the dearth of males on the campus during the war years, the Inter-Fraternity Council, enlarged with representatives from the new Greek fraternities, saw a busy year governing fraternity relationships and regulating the rushing program, which resulted in more than 200 new pledges being initiated into local chapters. To climax its work during the school year, the council, composed of two representatives from each fraternity, sponsored the annual "Pin Ball" in the spring. The group also sent representatives to the annual meeting of the National Inter-Fraternity Council in New York City in November. Serving as president of the organization was Howard Goldberger, a representative of Sigma Alpha Mu, while Dr. Roy Tasker was faculty adviser.

PHI KAPPA PSI

Standing—Taylor, Hunter, Bower.

The oldest fraternity at Bucknell stands in all its wisdom high upon the campus. This year it has again marched as one of the leaders of social, academic, and athletic activities. Fourteen senior brothers said farewell to the red colonial mansion on the Hill this year.

Phi Kappa Psi started the sports program by defending last year's golf championship. The team's powers being depleted by graduation and promotion to varsity of its members, it was forced to take second place. In the gruelling cross-country race the underrated and non-beared team from the house on the Hill warmed and thrilled the hearts of the brothers as they witnessed three cardinal red jerseys gliding over the crest of the Hill among the first five contenders.

The annual Christmas party with the Pi Phis was the outstanding event of the pre-Christmas season. The Faculty Tea, Shipwreck Dance, and the Mother's Day program in May were preliminaries to Houseparty, climaxing a busy social season. A new addition to the social life was the inauguration of the Jefferson Duo with Phi Gamma Delta.

SIGMA CHI

Standing—Johnston, Lee.

Twenty-four seniors of Sigma Chi walked the paths of all came in quick succession, with Houseparty Weekend Bucknell for their last semesters as undergraduates this climaxing the year's events.

year. Among them were members of the varsity football. It was an auspicious year in sports also. Sig intra-basketball, and boxing squads, as well as members of mural teams rode high, taking the tennis cup at the program's beginning, and compiling impressive records in virtually every honorary on campus. They looked back other sports. Sigs and pledges earned their varsity letters in nearly every sport. The chapter's year had been on a good year. The Kappagenda had been full. A rather diverting Hallowe'en party ushered in the house a fitting send-off to the largest Sig Class ever to graduate social season. The pledge banquet and dance, the Christ from Kappa Chapter. The White Cross had gained new mas party with Alpha Chi, the Bowery Brawl, open houses lustre through the year.

PHI GAMMA DELTA

Seated—Rickard, Shimer.

The great white star of Phi Gamma Delta shone with unprecedented brilliance over the campus scene this year. At the end of another scholastic year the Fiji men could sit within the tradition-bound walls and mull over pleasant memories . . .

The presence of the 1946-47 All-Year Intramural Sports Trophy in the living room recalled past athletic achievements and furnished incentive for house teams during the year. Shortly after the beginning of the semester the house golfers brought the golf cup to rest on the mantle beside the All-Year Trophy. The purple and white were well represented in varsity athletics and held the honorary football captaincy for the year, as well as the co-captaincy of the championship soccer team.

Highlight of the Fiji social calendar was the Christmas Formal with the candle-light, turkey and trimmings. A great pledge class was presented at the formal pledge dance, and other social functions throughout the year were well attended.

SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON

Renovation seemed to be the keynote of Sigma Alpha Epsilon's efforts this year. Prosaic, but oh so necessary, was the addition of a new kitchen instrumental in stilling the gastronomical grumbling of those of the sixty-two actives and twenty-seven pledges who ate in the house. Before and after chow, paint-smearing dungarees, were the uniform as, amid the screech of saws and the pounding of untold numbers of nails. The actives and pledges sacrificed time and fingers for the completion of the new bark gameroom.

All was not sawdust and pain, however. Work on the gameroom finished, the house threw itself with equal fervor into the social swing. A semi-formal pledge dance, the Christmas party with the Tri-Delts, the Christmas dance, and the Faculty Tea were the first semester's big events. The Hobo Dance, the Valentine Dance and Houseparty kept the brothers busy the second term. Always versatile, the house fielded strong teams in intramurals, as well as participating in many extra-curricular activities.

Standing—Zigler, Linton.

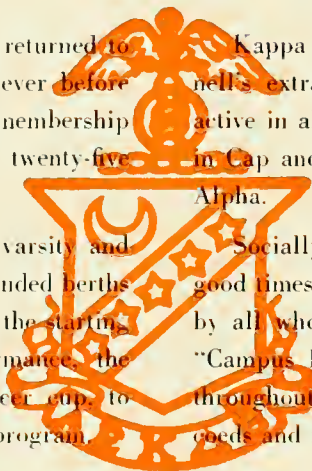

The Alpha Phi Chapter of Kappa Sigma returned to the 300 acres last September stronger than ever before in its fifty-two year history at Bucknell. The membership totaled ninety, including six married men and twenty-five pledges.

The house was well represented in both varsity and intramural athletics. Seven of the brothers landed berths on the varsity football squad and three made the starting soccer team. Repeating last year's performance, the Kappa Sig intramural booters took the soccer cup, to give an auspicious start to the year's sports program.

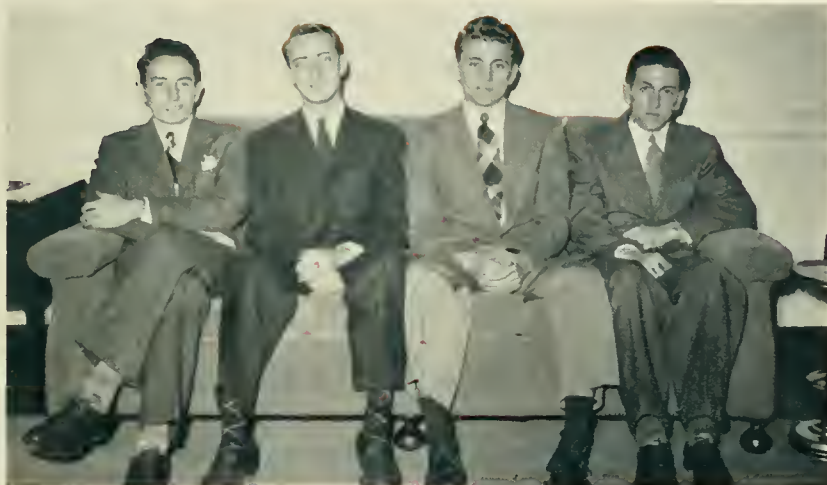

Kappa Sigma men have participated actively in Bucknell's extra-curricular activities. House members were active in all campus organizations, holding key positions in Cap and Dagger, the Psychology Club, and Pi Sigma Alpha.

Socially the house has maintained its reputation for good times. The pledges' "Farmers' Frolic" was enjoyed by all who came to dance to brother Jack Loughhead's "Campus Kings." Popular also were the open houses throughout the year which enabled us to play host to the coeds and men of the campus.

DELTA SIGMA

With their fraternity's golden anniversary just around the corner, the men of Delta Sigma have been making big plans for the celebration next spring of fifty years of growth at Bucknell. But not forgetting entirely about the present, the Demies welcomed a record-breaking number of alumni back at Homecoming and again on Founders' Day in April, when the chapter revived an old tradition by presenting a play for the grads and other guests. Demies helped usher in the fraternity social which with a well-attended Faculty Tea early in October, and a house-warming also was in order, honoring the fraternity's new house furnishings and landscaping. The Winter Formal in January, annually a campus favorite, and House Party this spring, were both successful. A pledge class of fifteen men was taken in last fall, helping to offset the absence of more than twenty seniors leaving the house on the hill this year.

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA

Standing—Godley, Russo.

Although divorced geographically from the campus, the men of Delta Zeta of Lambda Chi Alpha have maintained a position among the top fraternities on campus during their thirty-four year history at Bucknell. In the Push-cart Derby in the spring of 1947, the boys from St. Louis Street have made a creditable showing in intramural sports this year.

The white house overlooking the Susquehanna was the scene of outstanding social events during the past two years. With the war behind and the prospect of a greater future in the offing, the brothers of Lambda Chi are resolved to keep pace in the years ahead.

SIGMA ALPHA MU

Returning to take his master's degree, David Sarnier, one of the founders of Sigma Phi of Sigma Alpha Mu, found the fraternity one of the strongest on campus in its sixteenth year at Bucknell. The year was highlighted by the long-awaited burning of the mortgage, accomplished through the combined efforts of alumni and actives. This year also marked the first presentation of the Austin Hirsch Memorial Award to the outstanding pledge freshman. The award was established in memory of Brother Hirsch, x-'46.

Active in campus organizations and athletic teams, the brothers were variously Senior class vice president, Inter-Fraternity Council president, ODK treasurer, and varsity football manager, as well as members of varsity baseball and basketball squads. The house, always high in scholarship, was the winner of the Rush Kress Scholarship Trophy for the second semester of 1946-47. A pledge dance and an installation banquet for new actives were highlights of the social calendar.

KAPPA DELTA RHO

Standing—Wolensky, Jackman.

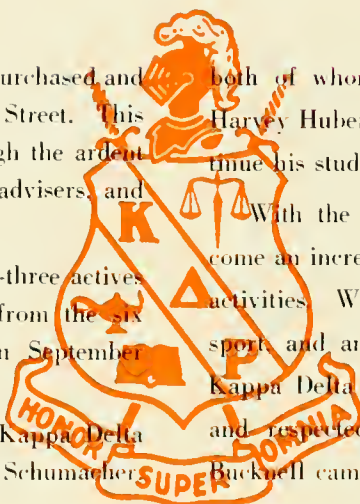

On February 6, 1947, Kappa Delta Rho purchased and moved into its new home at 120 South Sixth Street. This advancement was made possible only through the ardent labor of the actives, the aid of the faculty advisers, and the support of the alumni.

At present, Kappa Delta Rho has twenty-three actives and thirteen pledges. This is a far cry from the six actives who supplied the driving force in September of 1946.

This year will be the last for three of Kappa Delta Rho's men: Brian M. Sword and George J. Schumacher, both of whom aided in the reactivation in 1946, and Harvey Huber, who expects to remain on campus to continue his studies.

With the increase in the size of the fraternity, has come an increase in the participation in sports and social activities. With teams being entered in every intramural sport and an increase in the number of social events, Kappa Delta Rho has once again resumed a substantial and respected position among the fraternities on the Bucknell campus.

From well-brushed tuxedos and gleaming patent leather shoes to checkered plaid shirts and GI shoes the twenty-seven actives and twenty-three pledges of Pennsylvania Kappa stepped into Bucknell's social whirl with a vengeance. After a freezing hayride in early November the pledges played host to the actives with the traditional party. The Pledge Banquet and Ball were held in Tustin Gym in December with the music of Glenn Michals furnishing the mood music for Sig Eps and "les femmes."

The climax of the social cycle was the bang-up House-party Weekend.

A small but determined group of brothers took part in all intramural sports and acquitted themselves creditably. Scholastically the Sig Ep's reputation was upheld.

Having lost the house during the war, the alumni and active chapter are in the midst of a campaign to provide funds for a house, and are looking forward to its acquisition in the near future.

Located on Third St. and Inspiration Corner, the Theta Chi house is a recent innovation in the fraternity life of the campus. There is never a dull moment in the lives of the 41 actives and 22 pledges. The week's activity commences Sunday morning to the tune of the church (alarm) bells, and is crowded with studies, ogling at those "clean-cut kids" after chapels ("Indeed") to more studies, Friday and Saturday night dances and the Fume Room. Then there are the late evening into early morning bull sessions on girls, campus politics, C. A. and more girls and then to bed to start all over again. So the weeks fly. Always new zest is added. One week it is the singing waiters featuring "Bill Grogan's Goat," the next serenades via telephone, long distance, to that newly-pinned addition to the family.

"Little Flower's" corsages and Purdy at the piano. the Phi Mu's at the Christmas party and Betty's cooking all helped make the year interesting, enjoyable, and exciting.

It was amid a bedlam of paint brushes, fresh plaster, and wallpaper shreds that the men of the newest fraternity on campus moved into their recently acquired Brown Street house last fall. By dint of strenuous effort the brothers managed to clear away most of the debris in time for Rushing Week, which saw the house augmented by twenty-two pledges at its end.

Homecoming, and the winning of honorable mention for house decorations, saw the formal initiation of the chapter by alumni brother Clyde Bailey and smiles on the faces of the alumni as they came back to a house for the first time in ten years. The social program ranged from the semi-formality of the pledge dance with its "Winter Wonderland," to the informality of the evenings in the big back yard curled around the fire with dates. Memorable too was the first pin serenade to the tune of "Phi Lam Sweetheart." With four brothers in this year's "Who's Who," and other brothers active in a variety of campus organizations, the Phi Lams can chalk up a fine year.

The installation of Beta Mu Chapter of Tau Kappa Epsilon to the Bucknell Campus, December 6 and 7, 1947 marked the first of the second ten of the national fraternities located here. The 56th chapter of this comparatively new fraternity, founded in 1899 at Illinois Wesleyan, was formed from a strong local fraternity which for twenty-six years has played a leading part in campus activities, Alpha Chi Mu.

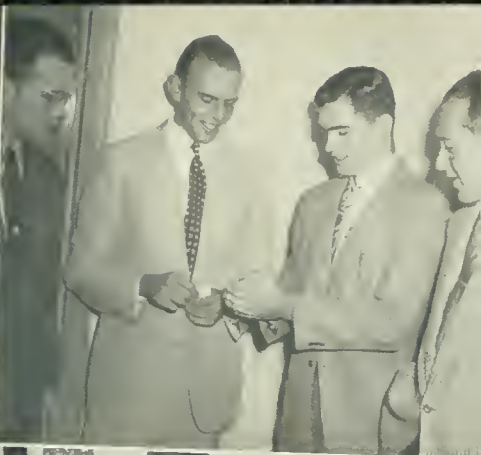

Founded in 1921 by a group of pre-ministerial students, Alpha Chi Mu has been noted for its fine scholarship. Forced to "close Shop" in 1942 because of the war, it reactivated in September, 1946, and on October 8, 1947 formally petitioned Tau Kappa Epsilon. The installation was personally conducted by the national president of the fraternity, Dr. Williams.

Tau Kappa Epsilon has been active in both sports and socially. Special observance by the chapter marked Founder's Day, January 10, and Scholarship Day in February. Likewise on the social agenda were the Hal-loween Dance, Christmas Party, and Pledge Dance.

Traditions

Imagine bread without butter . . . beer without pretzels . . . ham without eggs . . . Adam without Eve . . . Imagine that and you can imagine Bucknell without its traditions.

Think of Bucknell and you remember the cannon, a midget Big Bertha in the triangle on University Avenue and Brown Street . . . the harvest of leaves in the fall . . . the quiet and peaceful cemetery trysting spot . . . chattering, chasing squirrels . . . the canine congregation, lords over the campus . . . the Wailing Wall . . . a fraternity serenade in the Women's Quad with faces looking up into a special lighted window . . . an oak tree plastered with signs crowding each other around the trunk . . . the Baptist Church spire with its clock stopped for eternity at 3:03 o'clock . . . Chapel on Wednesday across the street in the Methodist Church . . . many-chinned Dr. Robbins and Western World Literature . . . the clock on the Hill that seemed to toll loudest during the small hours of the morning . . .

But these are only a few. To these you can add your own traditions, some amusing, some beautiful, some even unpleasant . . . but all symbolical of our time at Bucknell.

JOHN D. PLANT

In appreciation of his contributions to track for the past 20 years, John Plant was 1946 recipient of the Middle Atlantic's plaque awarded annually for "meritorious and faithful interest in track."

JOHN D. PLANT

Bucknell University is a century-old institution, steeped in rich traditions and legends which have firmly imprinted their historic roots in every phase of present-day campus life. But probably no tradition or legend will be so long remembered by the legions of Bucknell students, past and present, as the great 21 years of service tendered to the University's athletics and physical education program by a single individual—John D. Plant.

Men in all walks of life and undergraduates on the campus today form contrasting levels among the 4,800 men who have come under the guidance and supervision of Mr. Plant in his tenure at Bucknell. All have come to love and revere John—as he is known to everyone who has ever met him—and his philosophy of "athletics for everyone."

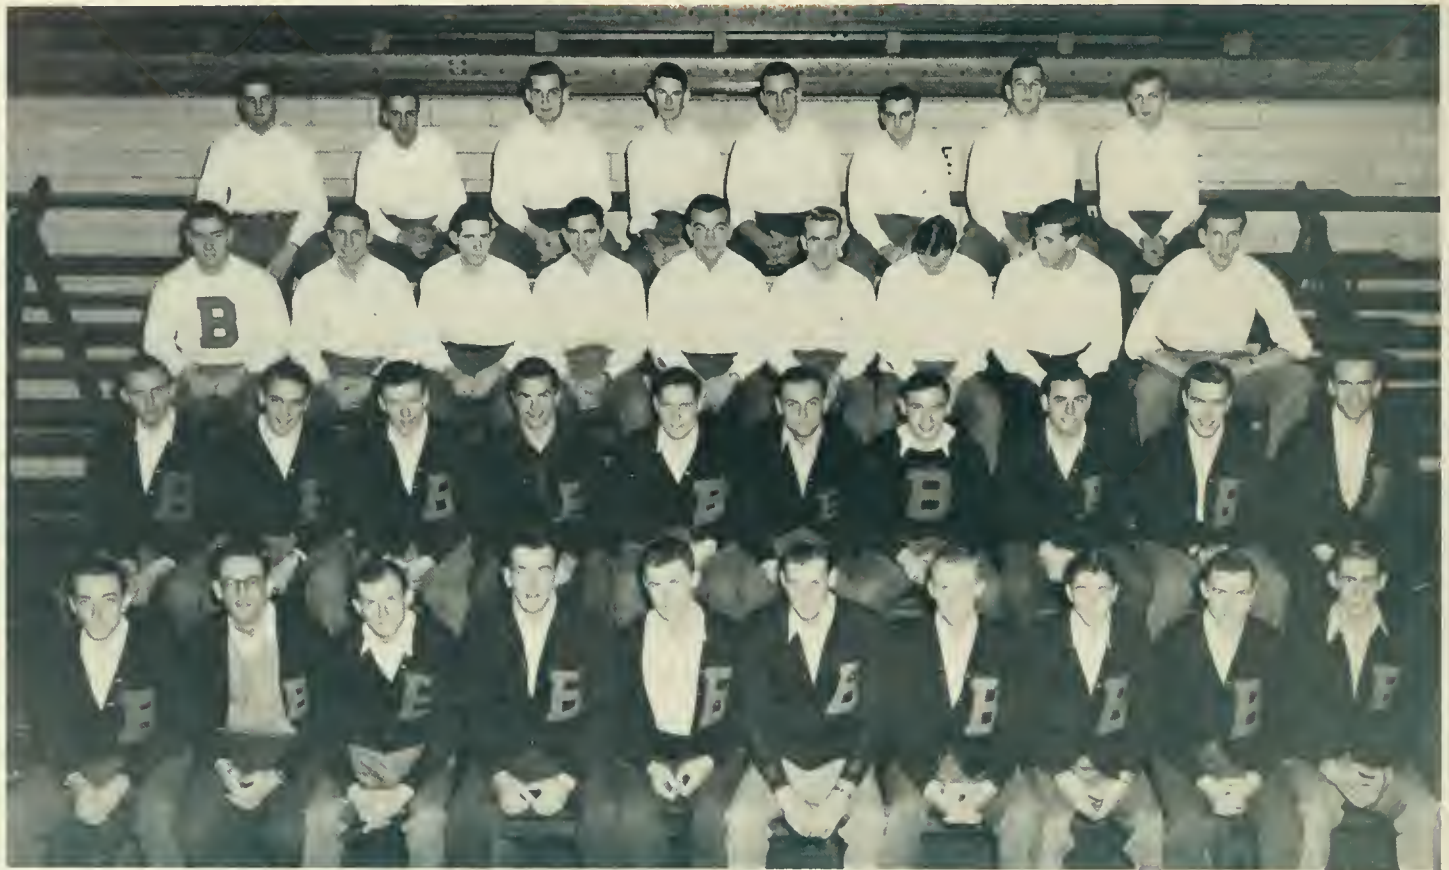

Besides coaching basketball and track, Bucknell's "Grand Old Man," who retired in June, 1947, organized and coached the University's first boxing and soccer teams. Except for a few years interruption, John guided the track team from 1926 to 1947, but one of his richest contributions to Bucknell was the founding of the intra-mural program.

Basketball teams at Bucknell felt the steady and well-coached influence of this man for nine years after his arrival on the campus. In those early days of Bison court teams it was difficult to corral a traveling team as interest in intra-mural competition drew many of the athletes away. But, Plant-tutored teams turned in many a good season, beating such clubs as Temple, Colgate, Villanova, Penn A. C., Washington and Jefferson and others.

Aside from being a coach, counselor, and instructor in physical education, John was associated with the training of many of Bucknell's gridiron teams, as well as other varsity sports. During his tenure as a trainer in the days of Carl Snavely, John recounts many an interesting tale of the playing prowess of the Bison's gridiron immortal, Clark Hinkle.

An active churchman, Kiwanian, Odd Fellow and Mason, John still thinks of basketball as his sport, mainly because he spent half of his life playing the professional circuit with some of the best teams in the East. But regardless of what it is, John still looks at everything he surveys in terms of the adage, "It's not so much whether you've won or lost, but how you've played the game." His life has been a memorial to just this.

CHEERLEADERS

With a cry from the stands of "Beat Alfred," the 1947-48 cheerleader season was ushered in at Memorial Stadium. And with the new season came screaming crowds, different cheers, and in crucial moments, the band gave out with a jivy rendition of "There's Gonna Be a Great Day."

Paul Watkins and his squad surprised the fans during basketball season by invading the floor in brand new outfits—white from head to shoe-laces, with a blue megaphone stamped on the sweater and an orange "B" embossed on the top. With new uniforms came a new system that shocked the bleachers as Bob Woolhouse turned a series of expert flips and the girls went down the gym at a rapid pace doing cartwheels. Thanks to Paul, Chris Christian, Carol Van Alan, Jim Burt, Bob Woolhouse, Bob McKernan, Bud Norton, and freshmen Lorry Yaufman and Jean Borden, Bucknell had an athletic season that was outstanding for its unity of spirit and school loyalty.

"Mickey" McConnell, triple-threat back who captained the Bisons through the 1947 grid campaign, fires a long one.

Coach Harry L. Lawrence and his Bison eleven, plagued by injuries to key personnel and a dearth of standout performers, posted two convincing victories in a rugged nine-game schedule that marked the 1947 grid campaign.

The Bisons started the season rolling on the black side of the ledger by trouncing Alfred University 25-0. The Saxons from upper New York state were victims of a bad case of "fumbilitis" and the alert Herd turned these miscues into tallies. Hal Swanson crashed over for two scores from the two-yard line. Sherm Doebler scooted 13 yards into pay-dirt, and Bill McKay grabbed a fumble in mid-air and dashed for the final score.

Journeying to Penn State proved to be most disastrous for Harry Lawrence's charges, for the Bucknell grid-ders were trampled 54-0 by what turned out to be one of the best football machines in the country.

Swanson sweeping end for good yardage against Temple.

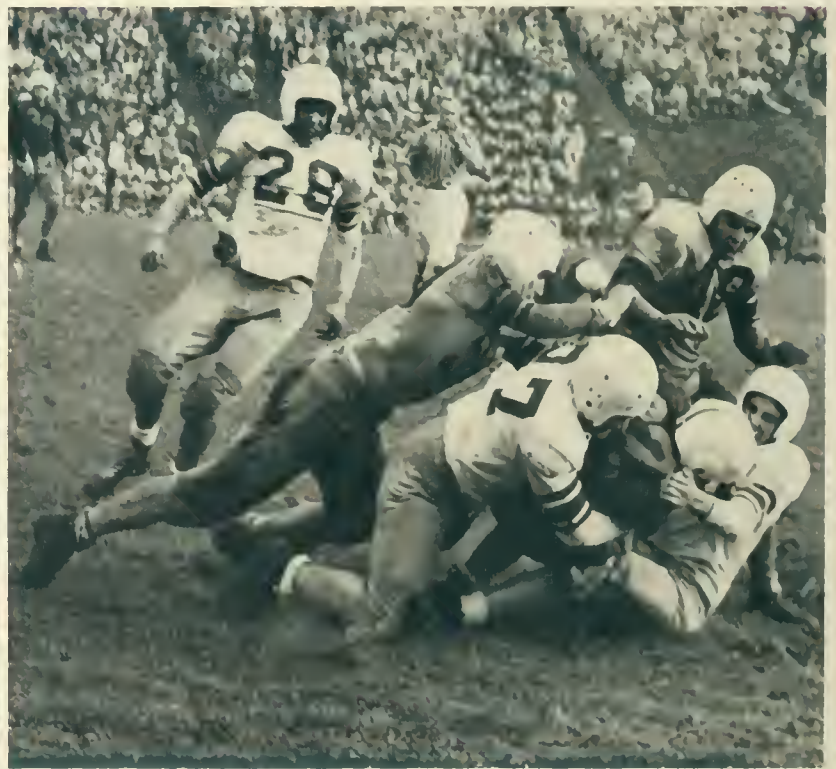

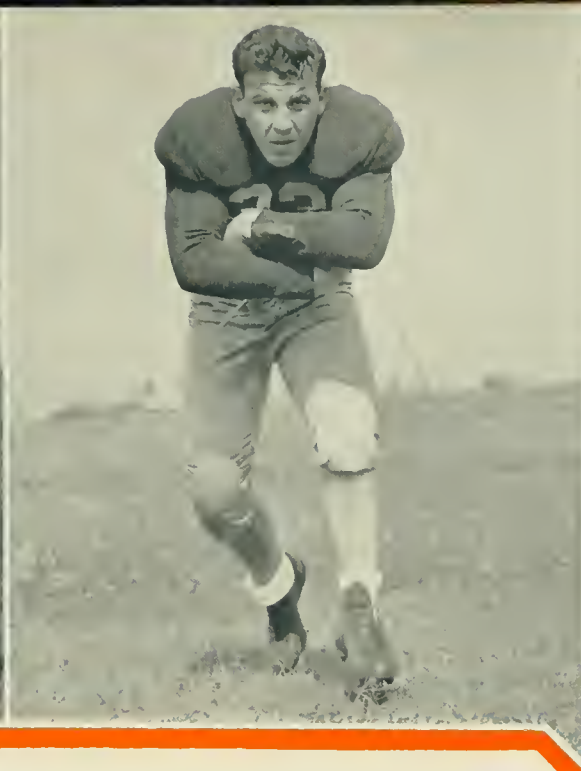

The team bounced back from the State contest to nip the victory-fed Blue Hens of the University of Delaware 13-12. The undermanned Herd turned in its most impressive display of the season and, but for later crippling injuries, seemed headed for an outstanding season. "Mickey" McConnell fired two touchdown passes—one to Ed Stec and the other to Charley Gruneberg—for the Bucknell tallies. Bob Bucher, playing the kind of ball that earned him All-State honorable mention laurels, crashed through the Delaware forward wall to partially block the all-important Blue Hen extra-point attempt that gave the Orange-and-Blue its second triumph of the yet young season.

Then came injuries and the Homecoming jinx . . .

The Leopards of Lafayette, playing hosts to the Orange-and-Blue gridders at their Homecoming, clawed the Bisons into submission 27-7. The following week

Ed Stec, after a short gain, is buried by a host of Lafayette linemen.

12,000 Bucknell alumni and friends filed into Memorial Stadium only to see Phil Slosburg and Co., hailing from Temple University, roll over the home team 21-0. The Homecoming hoodoo continued to plague the squad when it travelled to Gettysburg and was handed its fourth setback of the campaign 7-0, in a game highlighted by a recalled Bison touchdown and a sensational 51 yard jaunt by McConnell.

The clash with New York University was postponed until early in the following week while the home of the Violets was drenched with a torrential downpour that turned the field into a sea of mud. The extra rest, however, did not prove to be the cure for the losing streak as the Violets, belying their name, waxed violent and handed the Orange-and-Blue a 19-6 setback. Snow, rain, and mud hampered operations against Buffalo on Dad's Day. The Herd took the opening kick-off and, with Hal Swanson plunging into the end zone, registered a quick touchdown. The up-state Bisons thundered back with two scores before the half, however, and from then on neither team could muster a sustained drive.

In the season finale at Allentown, Muhlenberg, nosed out by a single point by Temple, thumped the Herd 39-0 in a game marred by rain and rough, hard football.

Salvage what you may from the record of the season while we bring some interesting facts to mind. The Bisons, with Bucknell's other All-State honorable mention standout, Hal Swanson, doing most of the ball-toting, gained 45 yards against Penn State, a feat which only three of the Lion's other opponents were able to surpass during the regular season . . . Out of 32 fumbles committed by opponents, the Herd recovered 24 and ranked high in percentage with the nation's top teams in this department . . . Halfback Ed Stec was tied for the lead in the nation with 9 pass interceptions.

All in all, in spite of the red entries in the ledger, there were bright spots in the season and indications that the coming campaign should prove more fruitful.

Jim "Smoky" Ostendarp reeling off a short gain against Penn State's Jayvees.

Dropping only a gilt-edged 13-6 decision to Penn State Jayvees in the season's finale, the Bucknell freshman eleven compiled one of the most brilliant football records in the history of yearling units when they tacked up a log of 4 wins, 1 loss and a lone tie for the past campaign.

The Baby Bisons, coached by Jack G. Guy and assisted by George E. Myers, launched the season playing a thrilling 19-19 stalemate with Dickinson Junior College at Williamsport who had played two previous encounters.

Temple's Frosh and the Kings College varsity fell easy victims to the Bison first-year gridders in night contests staged in Memorial Stadium which drew fair-sized crowds to watch the well-gear'd machine give promise of better things ahead for the Bison varsity elevens.

Paced by such sterling backfield performers as Jim "Smoky" Ostendarp and Al Hegelein, the yearlings possessed a forward wall, including crack guards Alex Duplicki and Arnold Pechulis, that gave the team proper winning balance. These and many other promising prospects will move up to varsity ranks next fall.

The scrappy Baby Bisons were unbeaten until conquered by the sophomore-studded Lion jayvees at State College in a slam-bang tussel. The charges of Jack Guy rolled up 109 points during the season as against 45 for their opponents.

When the word came clicking along the copper that Bucknell's soccer team was co-holder of the Middle Atlantic Conference soccer title, by virtue of a 2-2 deadlock with Rutgers University, an epic milestone had been reached. Never before had a Bucknell soccer team acquired a trophy case dust-displacer for its seasonal efforts, and this year, to add the Alger touch, the trick had been turned with Bill Lane in his first year at the helm, and the Bisons but two-year-olds in the conference.

The team opened the season with no indication of things to come by dropping a close one to West Chester, after battling through two overtime periods, 2-1. Defeats by two of the East's best, Penn State and Temple, failed to dampen their spirits as they roared back with a 6-0 win over Delaware, their first conference opponent, and continued their improved play by notching a 3-2 win over Drexel, deadlocking a strong Gettysburg eleven, 1-1, and defeating Western Maryland, 4-1.

The regular season ended after losses to F. & M. and Rider, both non-conference foes, but because the Bisons had been choosy in making all of their victims conference foes their record entitled them to a spot in the play-off brackets. The result . . . co-possession of a coveted title.

VARSITY

The Bison varsity cagers, playing a 22 game schedule, moved the University into its fifty-second year of intercollegiate competition. By defeating Penn State's Nittany Lions twice in one season, the courtmen thwarted the jinx that had not been overcome since 1897. Victories over Juniata, Lehigh, Penn State, highlighted the season at home.

Coach Jack Guy's hoopsters could not find the win column on the road, and with the campaign completed the courtmen garnered only two success in thirteen attempts on foreign hardwood: Penn State and Gettysburg.

This year's aggregation was built around Lou Deesi, John Lose, and rangy Bob Williams. The old nemesis, injuries, plagued the basketballers throughout the season for Williams, the 6'4" standout in seasons past, was forced to withdraw from the roster due to injuries sustained in football. Senior guard Don Hamre, soph John Mosny, and Clair Swarner bolstered the cause from the back court. Jack Weiss, mid year graduate, Decsi, Lose, and Bill Woodcock handled the chores at the forward positions.

Encountering some of the most formidable of East Coast quintets, the Orange-and-Blue have looked far more impressive then the seasonal log would seem to indicate. Several of the setbacks have been nip-and-tuck frays with the final issue hanging in doubt until the game-ending buzzer. Displaying a tight defense throughout most of the season, the Bisons' chief weakness has been a consistently dangerous scoring punch. Flashes of brilliant basketball have highlighted the season to date, but, for the most part, the cagers have found it difficult to co-ordinate their scoring potential with their defensive ability.

If, for no other immediate reason, the season can already be counted as a success because of the twin killings administered to the Nittany Lions.

By any kind of athletic yard-stick, you certainly couldn't consider the 1947-48 jaunt down the pine-boards a whooping success. But this plucky Bison court machine, even when stripped of its bellwhether performers, geared itself for all-out spurts toward the close of the victory-famished campaign.

At the season's end, the wearers of the Orange and Blue togs were a mere shadow of their earlier selves. Gone were Jack Weiss, who departed via the graduation route in late January, Lou Decsi, Bob Williams, Stan Kauffman, and Tom Sweeney.

Bill Woodcock, playing his first season at Bucknell as a sophomore, undaunted by the team's showing grabbed himself personal laurels for his accurate foul-shooting tactics. "Woody" converted 35 of 44 chances at the free throw lane to rank among the top ten in that department in the nation.

bers of the Herd finished out the disastrous season with plenty of non-defeatist spirit, even though the opposition continued to get tougher. They worked in practice like a team of champions.

Coach Jack Guy, who completed his initial junket with the Bisons, deserves plaudits for his driving will and fire. His Bison quintet next year will be minus the services of three June graduates: Don Hamre, Tony Hoying, a mid-season reportee who gave the club great back-board punch, and Bill Day.

The coming season on the floorboards will be an interesting one to watch—from many angles. The Bisons will be facing one of the toughest Davis gym cards in history. All-Star attraction nights will be weekly occurrences in the spacious campus palestra next winter.

Court mentor Guy will have had one year behind him with which to acquaint the Bison dribblers with his style of play and what with a host of returnees, augmented by a couple of talented freshmen graduates, there should be many an interesting night spent in the confines of those hallowed basketball halls.

A tense moment along the freshman bench.

Al Hegelein connects for two.

The yearling cagers of Coach Bill Lane, plagued somewhat by a dearth of material, the breaks meted out by Dame Fortune, and the jinx of a growing slump which developed after the final tallies were registered on the scoreboard after the season's initial contest, found the road to the winning column mighty rocky through the first half of the 1947-48 season.

Wilkes College put the skids under the hounding Baby Bisons and christened the yearlings in their seasonal launching in a somewhat rude manner. Like treatment has followed, to this writing, with the freshman floormen still seeking their first taste of victory.

In the seven home contests and five on foreign boards the yearlings have met some exceptionally strong freshman units, and, in bowing, have looked far more impressive than the season's log would indicate. Perhaps it has been Dame Fortune dealing from the bottom of the deck, or simply a lack of experience that has played a large part in the story. Whatever the case may be, some fine individual talent was displayed and with two victories for the year's last two games the outlook is hopeful for next season.

A hard left jab thrown by heavyweight Hal Swanson falls short of Doug Fleming's features as Coach Richards and the squad members look on.

A well-balanced and finely-conditioned boxing squad, consistently one of the better collection of college mitt-men in these parts, represented the Orange-and-Blue through the 1948 ring wars.

In the season's baptism-of-fire the Bison boxers thumped out a 7-1 decision over American University to make an impressive debut before one of the largest home crowds in the sport's history at Bucknell.

In their second outing of the season, the Bison battlers were handed a 5-3 defeat by a power-packed Penn State aggregation. The mighty Nittany Lion color-bearers were extended to the fullest in downing the charges of Coach Bill Richards—himself a former Penn State boxing captain.

After taking the count at Penn State the Bucknell mitt-men came back to floor C. C. N. Y., 4½-3½, at Davis Gym to notch their second triumph as against one defeat.

* Jayvee match

Beginning its second year of intercollegiate wrestling competition, and its initial venture into the Middle Atlantic Conference, the Bison grappling team laid the foundation for a successful future in the mat sport.

An inexperienced band of candidates reported to Coach Herb Maack at the beginning of the season, but the team developed sufficiently by the opening match to gain a surprising deadlock with a more experienced Lafayette Leopard aggregation.

The highlight of the season, although it resulted in a Bison defeat, was the Franklin & Marshall match in Davis Gym. Although Herb Maack's charges fell before the undefeated Diplomats, 28-10, they garnered more points than such powerful teams as the University of Pennsylvania.

Progress was also made in the development of freshman wrestlers who were ineligible for varsity competition. In their single match, the Baby Bisons showed plenty of promise by dropping a close decision to Penn State.

Jim Mullins, undefeated in his collegiate career while wrestling in his weight class, and acting captain for the Bisons during the 1947-48 campaign, represented Bucknell in the 155-pound weight class in the Middle Atlantic Wrestling Conference Tournament. Pinning all of his challengers, Mullins emerged as the Conference titleholder and was awarded the "Outstanding Wrestler" trophy for the tournament.

VARSIITY

Although the record of the 1917 Bucknell team was in the red as far as the win-loss column goes, this is by no means indicative of the type of baseball played by the Bison nine. Under the tutelage of Coach Bill Lane, the candidates for the 1917 squad, sparked by several lettermen from the previous year, developed into a ball club which displayed ability and spirit throughout the entire season. Of the eight losses received in the 13 starts, most were of the type which could have been reversed by a well-timed break. Over the whole season, Bucknell averaged less than one run behind her opponents.

Co-captains for the season were Gene Hubka and Herm Bloom. Hubka and Jack Huckin formed the backbone of the catching department. The other half of the Bison battery department, the pitching corps, was unusually strong. Hal Swanson, Cal Seaman and Art Raynor bore the brunt of the pitching chores. All three men turned in neat performances during the course of the season. Supporting these reliable batteries were the capable in-field combination of Sherm Doeblor at first, Don Hochbrun at second, Bob Camac at third, and Wally Holter and John Arbogast at shortstop. Ed Stec, Howie Hubble and Curt Bartelt made up the outfield.

The season got off to a rather slow start with losses to Susquehanna, Lehigh and Lafayette—the loss to Lehigh being in spite of a two-hit performance by Hal Swanson. Then, after a one-sided win over the Quantico Marines, another slump occurred, with decisions dropped to Gettysburg, Juniata, and a powerful Villanova nine.

The Bisons then retaliated for a previous defeat by trouncing Susquehanna 13-8 in a return engagement. After dropping the next one to Penn State, the Lanemen copped the following three encounters, subduing Juniata, F. & M., and Albright in that order. The last game of the season was lost, after a bitter struggle to the old Bison nemesis, Penn State.

At this time the field north of Memorial Stadium is buzzing with frantic activity as Bill Lane forms the nucleus of the 1948 baseball team. From all pre-season information and observation, it promises to be a good one, and an aggregation that will command respect on collegiate diamonds throughout the East.

TRACK

Bucknell's cindermen opened the 1947 season by easily trouncing Dickinson 90½ to 35½ in Memorial Stadium. Two Bison thinclads notched double victories—Fred Snyder won both hurdle events and Don Davidson took shotput and discus honors. Hank Fornwald, holder of the school high jumping record, gathered first place laurels in high jump. Other laurels were won by Jesse Syme, 440; Bill Hoeveler, javelin; and Walt Lewis, 1 mile.

In their second meet the Bisons placed second in a triangular meet at Gettysburg, with the host winning first place and Juniata third. Winners in the meet were Bill VonHeill, broad jump; Fred Snyder, low hurdles; Jesse Syme, 440; and Don Davidson, shot put.

Upsetting Muhlenberg, the Bison trackmen gained another victory in a triangular meet with Muhlenberg and Drexel. Bucknell tallied 65 $\frac{4}{10}$ points to Muhlenberg's 55 $\frac{7}{10}$ points and Drexel's 34 $\frac{4}{10}$ points. Double honors went to Jesse Syme for taking the 220 and 440, and to Jim Stumbaugh for winning the pole vault and tying with Hank Fornwald for first in the high jump. Bernie Bujak completed the victory by winning the 880, and Don Davidson again took honors in shot and discus.

In the Middle Atlantic's Bucknell met some of the strongest teams in the East. Though the team did not place well as a whole, individual honors were good. Don Davidson tallied 3 points in shot put, Bill Von-Heill, 1 point in broad jump, Hank Fornwald 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ points in high jump and Jim Stumbaugh $\frac{3}{4}$ point in pole vault. Stumbaugh tied for second place in this event by topping 12 feet.

TENNIS

The Bison tennis team completed their 1947 season with a record of two wins and three defeats. Off to a good start by winning a close one from Gettysburg 5-4 and trouncing Susquehanna 8-0, the squad found the going much tougher for the remainder of the campaign. Losses were suffered at the hands of Franklin and Marshall and Lafayette, and the season was concluded with a 6-1 loss to Penn State.

Piloting the team and playing the number one position was Frank Haas. His doubles partner, and number two man, was lanky, hard-smashing Bill Hooveler. Jack Nothel, Charles Ogg, Dick Ash, Don Hamre, Jack Koch, Bud Poteat and Craig Linton rounded out the squad.

Coach Peters' squad for the present season is made up of veterans Nothel, Koch, Hamre, and Linton, and a half-a-dozen aspirants who hope to land a berth on the team.

GOLF

The Bison linksmen completed a successful season by compiling the creditable record of five wins and three losses. Captained by the steady-playing John Arbogast, the divot diggers drove, chipped, and putted their way to victories over Albright, Lafayette, Franklin and Marshall, Juniata, and Dickinson, losing only to Cornell, Juniata, and Lehigh—all on foreign courses.

Besides Arbogast the team consisted of Don Montgomery, Harry Cholowinski, Mark Henry, Frank Stasenko, and long-hitting Joe Spicer.

Harold Evans, the Bucknell coach who is starting his tenth year as mentor, has molded a team for this season from returning Montgomery, Cholowinski, Spicer, and Stasenko, with several promising freshmen to give him a combination which has great possibilities.

INTRA

The University's well-balanced intra-mural sports program, shelved by the war in 1943, enjoyed one of its most glorious years since its inception in 1929 by John D. Plant during the 1946-47 college term. Student interest and rivalry reached new heights as competition was keenly waxed in every one of the 11 sports.

This post-war intra-mural boom also saw the departure of the program's founder and co-ordinator, John Plant, from the campus scene where he had for some twenty years, worked towards all-out student participation in sports.

MURAL

Two members of the physical education staff, Bus Blum and Hank Peters, capably directed the play in the program throughout the year with noble assistance from the student-composed intra-mural council.

Phi Gamma Delta fraternity walked off with the coveted all-year trophy and was crowned All-Year champions of the program for the past year. The "Fijis" captured the boxing, track and softball events and placed second in cross-country, golf and wrestling to garner a grand total of 547 points.

Closet competitor in the trophy race, which sparkled with down-to-the-wire action all the way, was Phi Kappa Psi who won golf, wrestling and volleyball in gaining 523½ points to rank second, followed by Sigma Chi, S. A. E., Lambda Chi, and Kappa Sigma in that order.

In the individual sports, Kappa Sigma came out the victors in the soccer event after waging a drag-out five-match playoff with Sigma Chi. Alpha Chi Mu, which has since become T. K. E., came out in front in the cross-country, although Bud Roberts, an S. A. E., ran a brilliant first-place race. S. A. M. netted the tennis title, while Sigma Chi turned down a strong bid by S. A. E. to win the basketball diadem. The bowling trophy was gained by S. A. E. after a well-matched playoff with Delta Sigma.

All in all, it was a great year for the intra-mural program, but with the half-way mark already reached in the 1917-18 program the pace seems equally as hot and evenly-contested.

Phi Gamma Delta, boasting a fine crop of all-around intra-mural athletes, is the defending all-year champion and already has forged out to the front in the race-point totals. The "Fijis" from 78 University Avenue finished in the runner-up spot for the soccer event which was won handily by a well-gearred Kappa Sigma team, but previously had won the golf team trophy.

Winning five individual titles out of eight, the Phi Gams had no difficulty in taking wrestling honors which gave them a long lead in points and placed them in the top perch in the running as this piece is written.

Phi Kappa Psi, ever in the thick of the race, won the cross-country team title when its ace distance man, Don Lohrman turned in a fine race to easily grab the winning spot. In tennis, the Sigma Chi's defeated the S. A. E. netmen to gain the nod and place itself in close competition for top honors in the race.

Winding up the winter sports picture in the intramural scene were the triumphs of the Sigma Chis, Demies, and Phi Psis in basketball, bowling and boxing respectively. All three sports were marked with the same type of competitive spirit that has been consistently in evidence throughout the year. The all-year trophy race for this season appears to be another rival-studded affair with the winner in doubt until the final inning of the last softball contest at the close of the program.

A PLEASURE TO SERVE BUCKNELLIAN
COURTEOUSLY, EFFICIENTLY

BUCKNELL BUSINESS TRADITION

*B*UCKNELL students become conversant with many phases of life outside their class room. Social contacts of all sorts, fraternity and social life, physical education intra-mural and varsity sports, recreational and religious activities, all play their real part in pedagogical institutions. The great traditions of Christian Democracy, academic freedom and freedom of the press are exemplified in a magnanimous and broad-minded way at Bucknell, indeed, and very fortunately indeed, has not even placed the Old and New Testament out of journalistic bounds, even though they are sharper than a two-edged sword in controversial matters and very offensive to certain sensitive souls majoring in questionable living. Let us all be grateful in this age of The Iron Curtain.

Last, but not least in importance with Bucknellians, are numerous places of business, who cater to student needs. For over a third of a century and covering two generations of college patrons, The College Inn has met a multitude of college needs in a satisfactory manner. In all parts of the Inn you will find a flavor of College life, where all extra-curricular activities are evaluated and discussed in an atmosphere of fine food and pleasing environment. The College Inn welcomes all members of the Bucknell family, including its various employees, an indispensable and useful part of The Bucknell Way of Life.
